Pink Bounty Swamps Gillnetters

VANCOUVER (CP) — Hundreds of gillnetters packed fishing grounds off the mouth of the Fraser River Wednesday to harvest a rich run of pink salmon.

The catch was so heavy that two boats were reported to have sunk or overturned because of the excess weight.

Harry Burrow, district conservation officer for the fisheries department, estimated 775 gillnetters took part in the catch.

"We've heard of a high of 1,064 pinks caught by one boat," he said.

"We figure deliveries from the South Flats averaged 250 per boat, about 90 per cent of them pinks.

"We had reports that at least two boats toppled over due to winding up their catches on the drums, which made them unstable."

A search and rescue official said the cutter Ready went to the aid of the gillnetter Wasp after it sank to the wheelhouse five miles south of Sandheads. The cutter towed the fishing boat into Steveston.

Another fishing boat, not identified, overturned in the Fraser River and was taken under tow by two other fishing vessels.

Fewer Unemployed

Trudeau Sees Better Winter

By MARJORIE NICHOLS
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau has dismissed predictions that the coming winter will be one of the coldest in recent history, in terms of unemployment.

In a television interview broadcast Thursday night, the prime minister said he believed the economy was on the upswing and that unemployment rates will be better this winter than last.

Trudeau, appearing on the CBC show Encounter, conceded that unforeseen circumstances, such as further action by the United States, could change the economic outlook.

In such event, he said, his government would not hesitate to take special measures to bolster the economy, such as tax cuts or increased government spending.

But he was generally optimistic about the economic picture, despite gloomy predictions from critics and the recent decision of the U.S. government to subject Canadian imports to a 10 per cent tax.

"Barring some disaster from south of the border," Trudeau said, the coming winter will be better than the winter just past.

The lastest unemployment statistics show that there were 455,000 Canadians out of work in August, the vast majority of whom were in the 14 to 24 age group.

The prime minister repeated that the government had not predicted the exceptionally high unemployment rates among the younger members of the labor force. But he

Inner Harbor Protest Today

A mass demonstration is planned for today at Victoria's Inner Harbor to protest the proposed U.S. nuclear test blast on Amchitka Island.

Brian Green of the University of Victoria Alma Mater Society which is organizing the demonstration said that 4,000 persons are expected at a passive sit-in being held from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. at the ferry terminal on Belleville.

As a prelude to the sit-in, a picket line will be set up from 8:30 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. at the Black Ball ferry terminal on Wharf.

The demonstration at the Inner Harbor will coincide with a protest at the international border at Blaine, Wash., sponsored by UBC and Simon Fraser students. Other protest demonstrations have been organized for today by several other universities across Canada.

Lang Threatens To Withdraw Wheat Pay Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will withdraw its Prairie income stabilization bill from Commons debate if the opposition does not allow it to come to debate in a reasonable time, Otto Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian wheat board, said Thursday.

He told the Commons Thursday that if the opposition does not pass the bill "in due and reasonable course . . . if the filibuster grows, continues," the government would conclude that passage was not possible.

Lang was speaking on a Conservative motion calling on the House to condemn the government for not making payments to farmers as required by the Temporary Wheat Reserves Act of 1956.

The motion, and a New Democrat amendment ordering the government to make the payments, were defeated as 112 Liberals outvoted the 73 Conservatives, New Democrats and Social Crediters present.

House Standing

The stabilization bill, introduced last April, would repeal the reserves act as of July 31, 1970. Payments have

ASSISTED FIRM LETTING 300 GO

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — Union official Robert Sanmure says a company given a federal grant to create 75 jobs here has decided instead to lay off 300.

In a letter to Jean Marchand, regional economic expansion minister, the United Steelworkers of America official said Canadian Ingersoll-Rand received a federal grant of $220,558 in March, 1970, to create 75 jobs, but the company has decided to close its foundry.

The letter, made public Thursday, said:

"Instead of creating 75 jobs with your $220,558, Canadian Ingersoll-Rand is creating 300 new unemployed."

In Ottawa, a spokesman for Marchand said that it is possible Canadian Ingersoll-Rand has received little money to date.

Routine procedure, the spokesman said, is to give no more than a third of any grant to a company when the grant is first announced.

Richard Wendeborn, president of Canadian Ingersoll-Rand, said in Montreal the company had received no such grant although it had been told it would.

'Excellent Understanding' Links Canada, France

OTTAWA (CP) — Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann of France said Thursday his country has an "excellent understanding" with the Canadian government while carrying on a special relationship with Quebec.

Talking to reporters at the end of a busy one-day visit here, Schumann said past disagreements between Ottawa and Paris had all been surmounted or were of no consequence.

Schumann said he and Prime Minister Trudeau, at a half-hour meeting Thursday afternoon, dealth with "all the reasons why there should really be no bone of contention between our two governments."

Schumann even got in a mention of the late president Charles de Gaulle in the context of Franco-Canadian solidarity.

"Canada believed it was necessary . . . as General de Gaulle showed" . . . to establish contacts and normal relations with all countries no matter what their present ideologies.

This was an apparent reference to Canada's recognition last year of China, an action taken by France under de Gaulle six years earlier.

In Canada, the former president is best remembered for his cry of "Vive le Quebec libre!" from the steps of Montreal city hall in 1967, an event which cast a pall over relations between the two countries.

'Contacts' Cut During Crisis

Document Ties CIA, FLQ

MONTREAL (CP) — The Star says it has "obtained a photographic copy of what is purported to be a top secret Central Intelligence Agency document indicating that the CIA has been in contact with the Front de Liberation du Quebec.

The newspaper says in a Washington story that "if the document is authentic, it shows that the CIA urgently broke contact with the FLQ at the height of the October, 1970, Quebec kidnap-murder crisis because it feared that the Canadian government emergency measures might uncover its association with the FLQ."

The story says the document appeared overnight in the mail slot of the Star's Washington bureau, along with a letter in French from an anonymous woman.

The document is dated Oct. 20, 1970, four days after the federal government invoked the War Measures Act to deal with the kidnappings of James Cross, British trade commissioner in Montreal, and Pierre Laporte, then Quebec labor minister. The terrorist FLQ claimed responsibility for the kidnappings and the murder later of Laporte.

The story says the document bears the letterhead of the Central Intelligence Agency, 2430 E. St., N.W., Washington, D.C., is marked "top secret" at top and bottom, and bears a notation that it was "encoded" Oct. 16, 1970, the day the War Measures Act was proclaimed.

Brezhnev Tells Yugoslavia To Fear Not

BELGRADE (UPI) — Soviet communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev publicly acknowledged Thursday that Yugoslavia has the right to build its own society, free from Soviet interference.

But he urged Yugoslavia to align its policy more closely with the Kremlin's through "political cooperation in the widest sense" — a move opposed by the Yugoslav government.

In a toast at an official banquet Wednesday night, Brezhnev said the "doctrine of limited sovereignty" was a fable, as were "rumors of Soviet armies getting ready to start marching on the Balkans."

The doctrine, which gives Russia the right to intervene to save the system in another communist country, was framed in 1968 to justify the invasion of Czechoslovakia. Had Brezhnev renounced it totally, he would have made it much harder for the Kremlin to invade any other East European country in the future.

Harmless Nutrient

Shrimp Cocktail On Tap

That was the word Thursday from University of Victoria biology sleuths who identified red "bugs" discovered in the Greater Victoria Water District water supply as tiny, fresh-water shrimp with a life cycle of roughly two weeks.

District chief commissioner Ron Upward suggested that water drinkers look upon the aquatic invaders as "a little extra nutrient." The pint-sized crustaceans are harmless, he told the Colonist.

He said the shrimp, which are small enough to go through the water system's filters but too large to go through the fine mesh on some household kitchen taps, have thrived in Sooke Lake because of the late summer warm spell.

A cold spell, he said, will kill the creatures in the lake, source of water for most of Greater Victoria.

'Warmer' Winter

said, the "phenomenon" was under study, and he indicated that the government may now be planning special programs to employ these young people.

In over-all terms, however, Trudeau said he felt that measures taken to date by his government "have put the economy on a growth path."

is increasing, he said, consumer demand is increasing; housing starts are the largest ever; inventories are falling; and exports are growing.

On the question of the new U.S. import tax, Trudeau expressed an understanding of Washington's action and indicated that he did not believe the "temporary" tax would become permanent, as he had feared.

"I don't think that the United States is deliberately trying to beggar its neighbors and make this into a permanent policy," he said.

He added, however, that if the U.S. did make such moves, Canada would have to have "a fundamental reassessment of our whole economy."

In another area, that of Ottawa-Quebec relations, the prime minister was also optimistic. He said in reply to questions that he believed his government's policies had diminished separatist sentiments in Quebec.

As evidence he cited what he said was "the latest evidence" that Parti Quebecois following in Quebec had fallen from 80,000 to 20,000.

Trudeau repeated his oft-stated view that the opposition in the House of Commons has been thwarting government attempts to get important legislation passed. He pointed specifically to the current controversy over payments to western grain growers.

The prime minister also disclosed that the government has been trying, without success, to get opposition agreement to placing a time limitation on debate of the new tax reform legislation now before the Commons.

"Sources advise that urgent action be taken to temporarily break contact with the FLQ militants since the Canadian government's measures may have undesirable consequences.

"Section officer rated and approved."

The covering letter, written in ball-point pen and dated Washington, Sept. 23, says the writer, for various reasons, cannot be indifferent to "the peace and order of Canada."

The story says a senior official of the United States state department was read the text of the document and commented:

"This sounds ridiculous. I can't believe that it is authentic. It sounds like junk mail."

He said that "the United States government and its agencies have contact only with the government of Prime Minister Trudeau in Ottawa."

Gotta Making Choice Today

OTTAWA (CP) — Coach Jack Gotta of Ottawa Rough Riders said Thursday he will decide by noon today whether to make a quarterback change.

Paul Brothers, former British Columbia Lion, ends his five-day trial with the Eastern Football Conference club today. Gotta must decide whether to cut him or make room for him by releasing either Gary Wood or Rick Cassata, the two quarterbacks now with the team.

Gorde Hunter

In Position

YOU'RE G. Scott Wallace, physician, 5'9", maybe 150 pounds soaking wet. The burr of Scotland has never been erased from your voice and it adds a snappish, urgent note to your conversation. You made it big a couple of years ago by defying and upsetting the odds in traditionally Liberal Oak Bay; you gave the Socreds their first Tweed Curtain victory. You weren't in there against any patsy either. Allan Cox, former mayor of Oak Bay, was formidable opposition.

You have been labelled iconoclastic and short-tempered. You chafed under the slowness of caucus, you spoke out against, ran afoul of, the party hierarchy. You potshotted Premier Bennett with the same fervor you used against NDP and Liberal.

By these very outbursts you've become the best-known back bencher in British Columbia. You finally crossed the floor, shucked the Social Credit security blanket and moved Bennett to label you an extreme rightist.

YOU HAVE already renounced overtures from both Liberal and Conservative parties. Instead, you appear to have opted for a new party — the New Conservatives — your party, your name. You state you are not really interested in being the leader, but you know and I know that Wallace has to be such a leader if such a party is to become the long-looked-for viable alternative.

You've just passed birthday number 42, which makes you old enough and yet young enough, to gain favor with many age groups. You will run into the charge that Scott Wallace is simply a mouthpiece for the medical profession, therefore it is obvious you must broaden your base well beyond such allegations.

YOU'RE IN a position, possibly the best position of any political leader, to seriously challenge the entrenched Bennett regime Bennett's own political power began when he walked across the house. The precedent is there.

Depending on Bennett's whim, of course, it would appear you have at least a year to build a challenge. You have the added comfort that the Lougheed-led Conservatives pulled the plug on the Socreds in Alberta when the pundits said it couldn't be accomplished. You would be wise to visit with Lougheed, learn the formula.

Actually, the formula is probably reasonably close to the one that got you elected. A lot of foot slogging, door knocking, meeting participation; in short, personal attention backed by willing workers.

YOU WOULD STUMP the province — every constituency — leave no stone unturned, as it were. You would find solid candidates in ALL ridings. You would, obviously, work your butt to the bone.

You would find many Socred seats ready to be turned over. You look at the Victoria area and know that Chant, Skillings, Tisdalle and Bruch are past their primes and only hanging on by the grace of W.A.C.'s coat tail. It is not beyond the realm of possibility a New Conservative party could win every single Victoria-area seat.

YOU KNOW the dissatisfaction with the Bennett government. In some areas the roar of protest is cacaphonous, but you also know the Bennett party can overcome the roar simply because the howlers realize the lack of anything better. You're in a position to offer that alternative, in a position to wheedle and cajole, to rasp them with that Scot's burr, to harangue them into a time-for-change way of voting.

Your approach is abrasive, to-hell-with-the niceties. It's a plus, not a minus. Voters are fed up with the carefully prepared pap offered by the majority of politicians of all parties.

YOUR greatest asset is the asset of not being known as a politician. Asset number two is charisma, pizzazz, stage presence. In some it's mapufactured. Yours comes naturally, make good use of it.

You realize time is a factor. Sod-turning time is now, building isn't done overnight.

Your're G. Scott Wallace. You have a chance to change the British Columbia political scene. Nobody else has been able to make that claim in the past 19 years.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

High Blood Pressure

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What are some possible causes of high blood pressure? My husband has had his pressure checked about six times for insurance purposes and it is always around 150 over 110. He is 37 and has had no medical treatment.

He has a history of kidney trouble but was checked recently for that and it is in good working order now. Should he seek medical aid? From a general practitioner or a heart specialist?

We have recently joined a health spa. Should he go directly from the hot swirlpool bath (109 degrees) to the cold plunge (50 degrees) or should he bring his body temperature down gradually before going into the cold bath?

— Mrs. W. E.

Heredity, obesity, excessive salt, nervous tension, premature hardening of the arteries and chronic kidney disease are just a few of the causes of hypertension (high blood pressure). It may be a combination of factors.

But it does make sense to have the doctor find out what is involved so you can start controlling it. In your husbands case, yes, by all means he should go to a physician — whether a generalist or a specialist isn't important as the need to see one or the other.

His systolic pressure (the 150) while high for his age isn't as alarming as his diastolic pressure (110). This is quite often the case the lower, or "resting" blood pressure, if it is consistently above 90, is abnormal and the cause should be sought.

Without knowing more about what other tests have shown, your husband, and knowing I can't suggest what he needs — losing weight changing his living and working habits to reduce tension, treatment for some organic condition, or what. But I do say that right now is the time to start looking after his blood pressure instead of waiting for the pressure to create more obvious symptoms.

The same applies to those hot-cold plunges at the spa: I would be cautious about them until he has had a thorough physical examination, including electrocardiogram and kidney-function test. It may be that after adequate tests his physician will permit such extremes of temperature, but without the results of such tests, I am not willing to tell him to go ahead.

Barrel of Money –But He Blew It

KERRVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — Creed Blevins rolled up a $100 bill months ago and hid it in the barrel of his 12-guage shotgun for Christmas.

When dove season opened Sept. 1, he went hunting, and never thought of his $100 until several weeks later.

"I had to think for a minute whether I really did it," he said. "I decided I wasn't going to tell my wife."

After a lot of searching, he found 11 pieces of the bill. He taped them together, and a bank gave him a new $100 bill. Then he told his wife.

Heads for School Board Seat

Youth Wins Voters

BREMERTON, Wash. (UPI) — William Lynch, 18, has defeated the president of the Bremerton school board in a primary election. He doesn't intend to declare war on the establishment.

The 1971 high school graduate won the primary — virtually assuring himself of a seat on the school board — after campaigning for stricter discipline, undercover narcotics agents and tougher handling of truants.

He thinks property taxes should be lowered, but wants higher pay for teachers.

The slender, clean-cut candidate will be unopposed on the final ballot Nov. 3. He defeated Eldon Matolock, 60, by 87 votes in the primary.

Lynch conducted a conventional campaign making speaking appearances, ringing doorbells, and putting up posters.

"My opponent was just too overconfident and didn't campaign," Lynch said.

The fact that youths between 18 and 21 were able to vote in the primary election helped his campaign, Lynch said, but he thinks his support came from "all groups in the community."

But even young voters who disagree with him on many points voted for him, he said, because "they identified with me and liked the idea of a person their age running for public office."

Was his opponent bitter over being beaten by an 18-year-old?

"He (Lynch) is young and enthusiastic and out to make changes," said Matlock. "I'm not really upset."

Lynch will start a political science course this fall at Olympic College.

"We're going to have to do something about the problem of the drug pushers in our schools," he emphasized in an interview. "Just informing the public hasn't done any good. We have to go in and weed them out."

Lynch is vice-president of the county Young Democrats and he describes himself as a "progressive conservative." Asked how he gets along with other young persons, he said, "I believe the people I went to school with think I'm on the right track. I don't think any hold any animosity . . . Maybe there might be some, over the issue of undercover agents."

He was asked if he wanted to use his position to radically change the school or to fire teachers he disliked.

"I'm not out to get anybody," he replied. "In fact, quite a few teachers supported me in the campaign."

Garfunkel Flies Last Lap in Lap

SEATTLE (UPI) — They got Garfunkel, the stowaway cat, back on an airplane again, but this time it was strictly first cabin in the lap of a stewardess.

Garfunkel winked, yawned and purred for the folks who came to see him off Wednesday in a Northwest Orient Airlines flight to Anchorage, Alaska, and a reunion with his master, Steve Smirnoff.

But somewhere between Chicago and Alaska, Garfunkel got out of his cage and into the superstructure of the big plane. For nearly a month he wandered around in the nooks and crannies of the 747 before being coaxed out.

"He gained 4½ pounds," said Mock, "and his nerves are much steadier, too."

So away he flew Wednesday purring in the lap of Darlene Jevne, Northwest stewardess. A silken pillow in a swank cage on the adjoining seat in the first class section of the 707 was available when he wanted to take a nap.

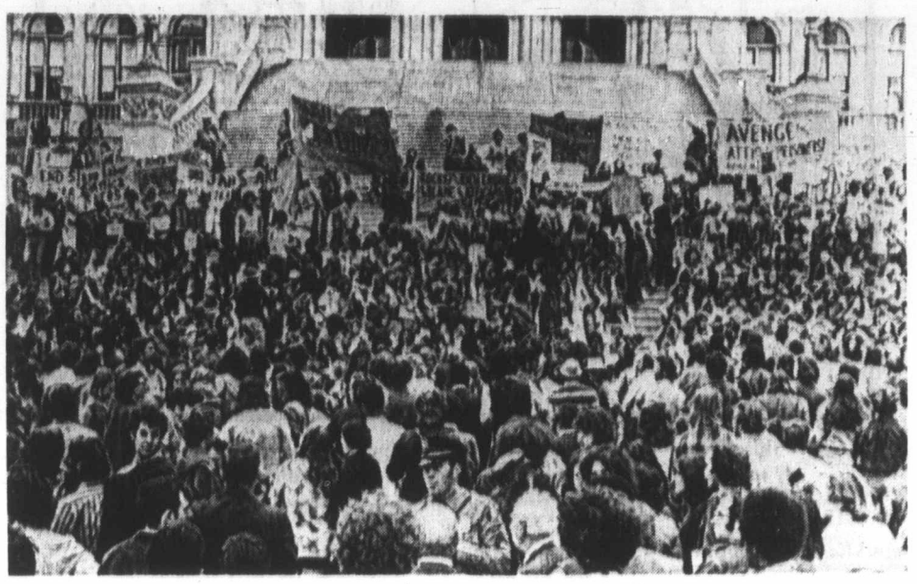
Vancouver Rescinds Youth Welfare Curb

VANCOUVER (CP) — City council's health committee Thursday rescinded welfare director Walter Boyd's directive cutting off welfare to persons under 19 years of age.

The committee expressed concern that the directive had been issued without reference to the committee.

The effect of Boyd's directive was to cut off about 250 young people from welfare payments in what he described as a "fat-trimming" operation. He said he hoped being cut off welfare would force young persons to return to parental supervision.

He said he issued the directive pending a council decision on whether cutting off welfare to teen-agers should be firm council policy.



Attica Protest at State Capitol

Scene outside New York State Capitol at Albany Thursday shows about 1,300 demonstrators protesting police assault on rebellious inmates at Attica state prison Sept. 13. Crowd demanded resignation of Governor Nelson Rockefeller. Meanwhile toll at prison rose to 41 with death of inmate from injuries sustained when police, national guardsmen stormed prison.—(AP)

Dual Job for Nixon

Second Justice Out

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Marshall Harlan, the scholarly and conservative judge who was generally rated as one of the United States Supreme Court's most able members, retired Thursday because of ill health. He is suffering from cancer.

The retirement, effective immediately, was the second from the highest U.S. court in less than a week and leaves President Nixon in the rare situation of having two crucial appointments to make to the nine-man court at the same time.

Associate Justice Hugo Black retired last Friday, also for reasons of health. Black was reported in serious condition at Bethesda Naval Medical Centre.

Harlan, 72, was taken to hospital Aug. 16 for treatment of what then was termed a backache.

The Supreme Court is scheduled to open its fall term Oct. 4 with only seven justices on the bench and several major issues awaiting decision. Perhaps paramount among these is the question of whether capital punishment is constitutional.

14.3 Million People

Relief Roll Increase U.S. History's Biggest

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the biggest annual increase in U.S. history, welfare costs skyrocketed 27 per cent last year and relief rolls increased 17 per cent, the department of Health, Education and Welfare reported Thursday.

John Twiname, administrator of HEW's social and rehabilitation service, said welfare costs for the fiscal year ended June 30 totalled $16.3 billion and relief rolls increased to 14.3 million persons.

"These are the biggest annual increases in the history of the program," Twiname said.

But Twiname said that the annual increase for the past fiscal year was offset by a decline for three consecutive months in welfare spending and a two-month reduction of welfare rolls.

"It is too early to call these decreases a trend," said Twiname.

'Clean Air, Water But Save Industry'

DETROIT (AP) — President Nixon said Thursday he would not permit environmentalists to slay America's industrial giants.

"We are not going to let the environmental issue . . . destroy the industrial system that made this country great," Nixon told the Economic Club of Detroit.

He noted "we all want clear air and clean water," but said we must ask "how many jobs will it cost" and re-evaluate any decisions that cost too many.

Noting the automobile industry provides one out of six jobs in the United States, Nixon said more attention must be given to the cost of abating pollution.

In addition, Nixon said William Ruckelshaus, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, will announce in the next few days a new engine that has passed strict federal emission standards.

The Amchitka Scare

SOMETHING SINISTER is seen by the United States Atomic Energy Commission in the opposition in Canada to its Amchitka testing.

Expressions of fears of consequences of the 1969 Aleutian blast brought a recommendation by the commission to its government that some attempt be made to learn the motivation for "the hysterical anti-test campaign in B.C. and other parts of Canada."

The recommendation is contained in a report made public by Alaska Senator Mike Gravel in which it also was noted that "It seems unlikely that the activity in Canada was entirely spontaneous, or that it resulted entirely from news coverage . . ."

And the report suggested that a study might reveal how the protests were inspired or financed, and by whom.

It smacks of McCarthyism; that the fine hand of the communist foe was directing the opposition to the further development by the United States of nuclear armament.

It is to the credit of the government that the report was ignored; that the views of its author who, in all fairness, the AEC points out has been retired, were not taken seriously.

But it does show there are some minds in places of the mighty that are so concentrated on a single purpose there is no understanding, appreciation or tolerance of opposing thought.

There can be no doubt as to the genuineness of the concern that has been, and is being, expressed in various ways in the United States as well as in Canada towards the second Amchitka test blast. It comes from big and little people who worry over its immediate effects on the earth's crust in an earthquake-prone region, and over radiation pollution, as well as over the larger question: the moral one.

There are more than enough nuclear bombs already to destroy mankind in minutes. Must they be made more potent?

Perhaps the Saanich school teacher who told her Grade 6 class that the United States feels it has to be the biggest in the world in everything, even the biggest killer, was not far off the mark. A letter from one of her 10-year-olds to the president of the United States expresses a deep fear in Amchitka 2 for the life of her pet rabbit, Barney, which her grandfather gave her "for doing good at school." She says she is "scared."

Richard Nixon must be "scared" too, and it can only be hoped that the fright goes deep enough to bring about a halt to the testing and a greater effort towards total banning of the bomb.

"Well, if this Group of Ten came up with a new monetary system, you wouldn't want to be left holding a big wad of that obsolete stuff . . ."

Merchant Navy Feasible

THE GOVERNMENT AT OTTAWA has just been told, in a report to the Canadian Transport Commission, that a bulk carrier deepsea fleet would be a profitable investment.

A number of insistent voices have been telling the government this for years, but it required the appointment of a group of consultants to come up with evidence sufficient to impress Transport Minister Don Jamieson to the point where he concedes that Ottawa is now "a darned sight better equipped" to deal with merchant marine policy.

Better equipped the government may be — at a still undisclosed cost — but it would be unwise to count upon any decision being taken on the basis of the expert opinion now in its hands which would involve the large expenditure necessary to subsidize a commercial fleet.

Subsidies to such cultural necessities as the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, requiring more than $170 million in the current year, are paid without a whimper. But there is an inconsistent reluctance to spend money on such a practical venture as ship subsidies even when the expert consultants say it is sound economics.

The whole 305-page advice package so gratefully acknowledged by Mr. Jamieson is based on the assumption that the ships it is discussing would be built in "low-cost countries." That rules out British Columbia or Maritimes shipyards, and even Quebec's.

And it goes on to suggest that there may be difficulty in manning any such ships because Canadians are no longer attracted to the sea. They are shore-oriented. Canadian crews, it is estimated, would cost 70 per cent more than those in low-cost countries. The expert advice seems to imply that it will be necessary to build a merchant fleet abroad and man it with cheap labor, the first proposition unattractive and the second intolerable.

However, the experts also have estimated Canadian loadings of bulk commodities will increase at an average rate of more than 9 per cent annually. And Pacific coast ports are likely to get an increasing share of these loadings as markets expand westward while traditional demand in Europe and the United States may have reached its peak, they feel.

To these encouraging predictions it is possible to add some others: In 1970 more than 27 million tons of cargo moved through Vancouver alone and by 1975 the volume will be more than 45 million. Ten years later it is expected to pass the 70-million mark.

If these figures may appear over-optimistic, it should be remembered that Vancouver loadings in 1965 were only 14.5 million tons.

While the Vancouver area provides the best example of growth prospects, the same conditions apply on a lesser scale at the developing ports to the north and on Vancouver Island.

With this information in mind, perhaps there is some sense in the suggestion that Premier Bennett take an initiative in the development of a Canadian bulk carrier fleet, built in Canadian yards and manned by Canadian seamen. It is even conceivable that an audacious government might extend its coastwise ferry interest to a trans-Pacific role.

Even that unlikely event is more credible than response by the present federal administration to the experts' advice.

Republican Convention

Mixed Reception for Political Circus

By CHARLES FOLEY from San Diego

THIS great naval base, the second largest city in California, is worried. While its selection as the site for the next national convention of the Republican Party is regarded as an honor by some, and a boon by the business community, the ordinary citizen fears a repetition of the widespread violence and rioting that accompanied the 1968 Democratic convention in Chicago.

"California is full of people standing around just waiting to demonstrate," said a spokesman for a rival site, Florida's Miami Beach. "They've got more two-legged nuts there than anywhere else. It's only a $5 bus ride for them from San Francisco."

* * *

That summed up what many San Diegans were quietly thinking. "Maybe President Nixon wants it here," said one local politico. "But the people of San Diego sure as hell don't."

The city is probably California's most conservative, a haven for retired naval officers, proud of its wealth, its calm campuses, its smog-free air, its reputation as "Camelot-by-the-Sea." Built around a broad, glittering bay, just 30 driving minutes away from the Mexican border, it rejoices in year-round sunshine cooled by mild ocean breezes.

Middle-aged and elderly tourists stroll along the uncluttered beaches or visit the enormous zoo, where most of the 5,000 animals appear to be asleep, lulled by the city's somnolent atmosphere. And the epitome of San Diego hotels is the Coronado, the state's most exclusive, a five-storey edifice of Victorian gingerbread which offers "superb dining in princely surroundings." Indeed, legend insists that the Duke of Windsor when Prince of Wales first met Mrs. Simpson there, while she was still married to the first of her three husbands.

The Coronado is also a favorite with Mr. Nixon, who played host there last year to President Diaz Ordaz of Mexico. And it has the advantage of being only 50 miles from his Western White House, up the coast at San Clemente — a few minutes by presidential helicopter.

That President Nixon's personal choice for a convention site was San Diego is admitted by the Republican site selection committee. Some members would have preferred Miami Beach, with its far greater hotel-motel capacity, its remoteness from scenes of riot and revolution, and its proven ability to block out protesters and demonstrators. But they bowed before the chief executive's wishes, while San Diego's business and civic leaders hastily scratched together a $1,500,000 bid and pledged 13,000 rooms for convention delegates and the circus that comes along for the ride.

Mr. Nixon, ever the politician, wants a foot in Governor Ronald Reagan's back door. He is not absolutely sure that Mr. Reagan has abandoned all hopes of the Republican presidential nomination in 1972, and he knows, from bitter experience, how valuable California's electoral votes can be to success. The president is a Californian himself, after all, and 1972 looks likely to be a tight race. Mr. Nixon won in 1968 as he lost in 1960, by the narrowest of margins.

San Diego's pristine image has recently been marred by a series of bribery and corruption charges against the mayor, a gaggle of his civic associates and the local police force; but the incredulity of the city's upper crust turned out to be justified when all but one of the defendants were exonerated. Mr. Nixon personally telephoned Mayor Frank Curran, 58, to congratulate him, with the words: "We in public life take a lot of knocks."

* * *

That San Diego's thin, lonely underground newspaper, the Street Journal went on beefing about the greed, decay and corruption of the city concerned no one much. Up at Logan Heights, the black ghetto area, shoulders were shrugged and everyone went to ground on the night the Street Journal's offices were raided by the local Minutemen, the far-right vigilante group. Machinery was destroyed, cars burned, windows smashed. It was quickly over, soon forgotten — at least by the average San Diegan. The ghettos and the local radicals were subdued.

So who wants thousands of long-haired freaks from 'Frisco bearing Viet Cong flags, peace symbols and pot — and who knows what else? The assassination of Robert Kennedy 100 miles away in Los Angeles is still fresh in many memories. Was not the president almost hit by a stone when he visited "up there" a couple of years ago?

Against such fears are put the assurances of the city fathers and the police that they are ready for any trouble. Civic leaders know a political bonanza when one falls into their laps, and some businessmen are already counting their blessings. There is rejoicing, for example, at the brand new 50,000-seat stadium, where it is planned to hold victory celebrations. The winning nominee (guess who) will make his acceptance speech there, and it is said that a Hollywood producer has already been asked to stage an appropriate extravanganza.

* * *

Local politicians tend to think as one with local business leaders, for the simple reason that they are one: the city administration is traditionally controlled by big business interests. By being host to this greatest of all American conventions, San Diego will be putting itself on the map as a convention city in the class of Miami Beach and Chicago, but not a few citizens wonder if they must wave goodbye to their old tranquility.

Strained Relations

The Romanians Hear Echoes of 1968

By LESLIE COLITT from Berlin

A FEW hours spent in East Berlin with East European diplomats and journalists is enough to chill anyone who may have dismissed events in the Balkans as a slight aberration in the main thrust of European detente.

These men have not been so worried since the months before the invasion of Czechoslovakia three years ago. The Communist diplomats, naturally, at first dismiss Western press reports of the seriousness of the ideological conflict between the Soviet Union on one side and Romania and Yugoslavia on the other as "speculative," and "wishful thinking." It does not take long, however, for them to aver that at no time since mid-1968 have strained relations between Moscow and one of its allies come so close to breaking point as now.

* * *

China is most frequently blamed for the latest escalation in the war of nerves. Romanian diplomats say that Moscow probably does not seriously contemplate Chinese military engagement in the Balkans, but they admit they cannot be sure in the light of age-old Russian fears of encirclement. The Romanians, too, are in a quandary. If they seek to placate the Russians by assuring them they will give China no physical presence in Romania, they fear this would be interpreted as a sign of weakness. In this classical confrontation of national interests, neither side feels it can back down without irreparable damage to its cause.

Almost sadly, Romanian newsmen remark that the visit earlier this year to China of their party leader, Nicolae Ceausescu, came too close to the announcement of President Nixon's planned trip to Peking for the Soviet Union not to suspect a plot.

But the Romanians are equally insistent that they have no intention of allowing any foreign power to gain a foothold in their country. "We were under Turkish domination for over 300 years," a Romanian embassy official explains, "and we are not going to exchange our independence for another foreign dominance."

The Romanians take great pains to point out that it is they who are under constant attack from Moscow while the Romanians do everything to assure the Russians of their loyalty. It is more a dialogue of the deaf. Week after week, Moscow's Pravda and newspapers in Hungary and East Germany strike out at Chinese designs on Europe, meaning Romania and Yugoslavia.

Yugoslavia replies in kind, while the cautious Mr. Ceausescu merely repeats his articles of faith that there is no "one centre" of the world Communist movement and that no Communist country may interfere in the internal affairs of a fraternal country.

This seems only to enrage the Soviet leaders more and strengthen Romania's belief that it must remain firm on what it considers a matter of its very survival as an independent Communist nation.

* * *

Here in East Germany, the Romanians say that they are being subjected to the same official meddling experienced by the Czechoslovaks in the months before the August 1968 invasion. The authorities here have taken the unusual step of forbidding the distribution of publications from Romania inside East Germany.

Not since the Prague spring of 1968, when the Czechoslovak press was banned from East Germany, have the German Communists stopped publications from a "fraternal" country from circulating in their country. Normally Romanian Communist Party newspapers and periodicals are sold with those of other East European countries at hundreds of news-stands throughout East Germany.

Although not many East Germans read Romanian — or Czech — the always alert East German authorities fear that translations of speeches by Mr. Ceausescu could circulate among interested East Germans. It is pointed out here that East Germany would never take such a step, a direct affront to the Romanians, unless it was sure relations between the Soviet Union and Romania are bound to worsen even further.

For weeks now the East German press has refrained from reporting anything on Romania, an area to which it normally devotes considerable space. This absence of the customarily glowing reports on Romania's economic and social progress could well mean that the East Germans are changing gear in preparation for a full-scale anti-Romanian campaign with Moscow's blessing.

Until now the Romanians rejected the possibility of the situation leading to action against their country, but they are no longer so sure.

* * *

"We fought the Turks with the most primitive means," a Romanian diplomat says, "and we could do this again to any aggressor. Look at Vietnam and you will see what I mean."

A Romanian correspondent despondently shrugs his shoulders: "We are a small country and this is what always happens to small countries."

Yet they cling to the desperate hope that the changes in East-West relations in Europe since 1968 will dissuade the Soviet Union from applying the Brezhnev doctrine to Romania.

The Isolation of Taiwan

By OTTO VON HABSBURG

THE admission of Peking to the UN is bound to lead to the disappearance of Free China from the international scene. True, Washington claims to be still looking for a formula to maintan Taiwan in the world organization. But these face-saving efforts are bound to fail. It is almost naive to believe in the generosity of the winners.

President Nixon's decision is understandable. Superpowers have global policies, in which small nations are only figures on the chessboard. This is a fact of life.

On the other hand the endeavor of some of the mass media, to shift responsibility for what happened to the victims, is odious. The friend is not only abandoned; he is also humiliated. Press and television all too frequently love to march with the winning battalions.

Thus one insists on the old age of Marshal Chiang Kai-shek, as if it was a crime. One forgets that most of the great things of our times were done by old men — such as de Gaulle, Adenauer, De Gasperi, Robert Schuman, Stalin and John XXIII. Furthermore Mao Tse-tung is Chiang's contemporary and the rulers in Peking are almost without exception well beyond sixty. Leaders on Taiwan are usually quite a bit younger.

There is also talk of corruption in Nationalist China. Of course, there were scandals, but they plague practically every government. What counts is the reaction in high places and this has been very stern in Taipei. Whoever has been on the spot knows that Free China's regime is clean.

The Nationalists are then accused of being reactionaries. This is a cover-all word so vague that it cannot be proven. True, Taiwan believes in a free market, not in collectivism. But, under such conditions, Germany's socialists minister Schiller is also a reactionary. The Nationalists have made an agrarian reform, compared to which Chilean President Allende's widely acclaimed initiatives are but a timid undertaking. Only Chiang gave the land to the farmers and did not put it into kholkhozes and he raised substantially the average standard of living of individuals. This of course is unforgivable, since it spreads capitalist corruption.

Free China has shown how to utilize rationally development aid. In Taiwan the rich have not become richer and the poor poorer as happens in India. A socially just economy was created. Once the take off was achieved, further aid was gratefully turned down and an independent Chinese development program started, whose excellent results one can watch in Africa. Taipei has shown that with devotion and sound principles everything was possible even under the most trying circumstances.

All this of course does not count when super-power interests are at stake. But one should at least not forget that development problems will be decisive in the future and that Taipei's experience can show a way.

Henceforth Free China will be increasingly alone. The number of embassies in Taipei will decline, but not the economic missions, since the island's foreign trade is nearly 50 per cent of the total of Red China's external exchanges.

* * *

Isolation is far from mortal. Little Rhodesia has shown for four years that one can live quite well without a seat in the UN and without the presence of foreign diplomats. For this only courage, determination and hard work are needed — and these are Chinese traits. Despite its painful defeat, Free China is not finished. There is still a place for a constructive alternative to the Peking totalitarians. "A few decades ago, a well-known French politician stated: In politics there is just one irreparable mistake — to die. As long as one survives, there is always a second chance.

Soviet Union's Growing Sea Power

By FRANK MACOMBER

It has developed a submarine-launched anti-ship missile superior to any comparable weapon in the U.S. naval arsenal. This year the Russian fleet is overtaking U.S. sea forces in the number of nuclear-powered submarines afloat.

Norman Polmar, editor of the American section of the authoritative Jane's Fighting Ships, ticks off these sombre facts on the fingers of one hand. He is convinced, moreover, that the United States should begin work now on an advanced submarine-launched missile program, even beyond the Poseidon, successor to the earlier Polaris.

The reason? Because, contends Polmar in an interview, by the mid-1970s the Russians may have sufficient strategic weapons to knock out U.S. Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBMs) in their underground silos and destroy the U.S. Air Force bomber fleet before it can become airborne.

In that event, he adds, the U.S. submarine force would be the "most survivable" of retaliatory weapons systems, with long-range missiles able to hit targets anywhere in Russia.

The proposed new submarine-launched missile system beyond Poseidon, called ULMS for underwater long-range missile system, is scarcely past the drawing board stage. Four years will be required to build it after the system gets White House and congressional approval. But Polmar insists that with its longer range and greater accuracy, ULMS would force Russia into a 360-degree defence against U.S. missile attacks.

Polmar also believes the U.S. Navy should develop a new family of ship-to-ship rockets, to be launched against surface vessels from subs and with a range of 30 to 40 miles, far beyond present-day torpedoes or anti-submarine warfare weapons.

Why, in its desperate efforts to overtake the United States in sea power, has the Soviet Union built no aircraft carriers?

"This would be a tremendous drain on Russian resources because they aren't equipped for such a project and don't have the 50 years of experience in carrier aviation that the United States possesses," answers Polmar. "Russia doesn't want to counter where the United States is especially strong, with a long history of naval aviation. She doesn't want to be second in one phase when she believes she can surpass us in other phases of naval warfare."

While Russia now has more nuclear submarines in numbers the U.S. Navy has 656 Polaris or Poseidon missiles poised for undersea firing — a figure the Soviet Union can't match before 1974 — according to Polmar.

By JOE ALEX MORRIS,

It is an old axiom, at least part flourish under the heavy hand of dicta trains run on time. Germany leapt fo under the fanatic guidance of Adolf H said of Greece under the colonels. Sin 1967, the economic indicators have tur that way.

It has been a prolonged economic boom, but now there are signs it is going sour. If they are confirmed, they bring up an interesting question:

* * *

Will economic ineptness do what various old politicians, resistance groups, and foreign pressures have failed to do and set Greece back on the road to democracy?

It is too early to answer this question, most experts here agree. And they differ widely in their interpretations of the current scene.

"We face bankruptcy next year unless vigorous measures are taken," says one economist who formerly occupied high posts under the colonels.

* * *

The core of the problem is the country's spiralling trade deficit. This reached $415 million last year and is running at $700 million rate this year.

Imports soared 17 per cent in the first five months of this year while exports actually went down by 4.5 per cent.

So far, the regime has managed to cover this deficit with increases in invisible returns plus foreign loans ($120 million in 1970). Gold and foreign currency reserves are actually up this year, and the government's credit remains good.

* * *

But its critics say the regime has been lucky, after a good start in the first years after seizing power. Early measures to stimulate the economy are now being continued for political reasons, at a time when the government should be cutting back on pump-priming.

Because they are supersensitive about their lacklustre public image, the colonels are reluctant to take steps which would further worsen it, these critics say. These include measures such as drastically cutting back on luxury imports and on non-essential rural and an improvement programs.

* * *

These critics believe the government should raise taxes and cut down on food imports, which reached $125 million last year. More than half of this bill was for meat, once a luxury but increasingly a common fare for average Greeks caught up in a consumer spending wave.

The government says its crit-

Historic Miscalculation Must Also Hasten Tokyo-Moscow Rapprochement

Nixon Double-Shock May Launch Japan on Nuclear Path

Japan, it has been sagely remarked, never indulges in "revolutions" — only "restorations." The double shock of President Nixon's perfidious overtures to China and drastic measures for economic self-defence has galvanized Japan's gathering trend toward a restoration of national independence and international autonomy.

The United States and the West generally have not perceived the internal restivness and patriotic discontent in Japan over explicit dependence on US defence and implicit submission to US policies.

By RICHARD HUGHES
Far East correspondent of the London Sunday Times and The Economist
From Hong Kong

BACKGROUND

There has been smouldering popular vexation — illogical perhaps, yet essentially Japanese — against prosperity without responsibility, which can be far more frustrating than a harlot's power without responsibility: whatever they may be, the Japanese are not harlots; they want power and responsibility as well as prosperity.

★ ★ ★

Tokyo's noble official aspiration has been the establishment only of an economic superstate — with meek allegiance to the U.S. international line as the price of defence patronage. But the Japanese would never have endured this vassalage indefinitely.

Now the U.S. betrayals — as the Japanese regard the Nixon double-shock — have exploded a violent and spreading reaction which the West still stubbornly miscalculates.

There has been a convenient and comforting delusion that Japanese public opinion remains overwhelmingly opposed to made-in-Japan nuclear weapons.

Openly, the Japanese leaders have said nothing to disturb the pious foreign conviction that, because the Japanese people had been the victims of the only atomic bombs ever dropped, they would strenuously oppose any home-made adoption of what could — and would — be represented to them as an essential and effective defence or deterrent against similar atomic aggression.

Hints were clear enough if governmental qualifications were studied: "as long as the U.S. is determined to stand by its security commitments abroad," or "provided America's nuclear deterrent is effectively applied to Japan," and so on.

The former director of the Japanese Self-Defence Agency, Yasuhiro Nakasone (of whom more will be heard politically) said when introducing the new five-year defence plan last year: "The present Japanese constitution does not forbid defensive nuclear weapons."

The alleged "nuclear allergy" of the Japanese people has been eroding steadily; recent public opinion polls leave no doubt that the public has become fatalistic about heavier rearmament and the need for nuclear defence: there is general acceptance of the inevitable.

One of the rising young leaders of the "independent Japan" movement is Shintaro Ishihara. Before the Nixon double-shock he declared bluntly;; "Japan must acquire nuclear weapons, even before a revision of the constitution, preferably in cooperation with the U.S.

"Our purpose in going nuclear would not be to compete against the Soviet Union, China or the U.S. It would be chiefly to strengthen our hand in international diplomacy.

"Nixon is already telling us to pick up the U.S. burden in Asia. He may mean the economic burden, but economic strength unaccompanied by military strength is very dangerous. Who is going to guarantee us against a possible confrontation with the Soviet Union or China?"

Another Japanese leader — anonymous but representative — summed up more briskly: "No nation can fittingly attend a superstate conference today without nuclear authority any more than a diplomat can attend a banquet without collar and tie."

Already there is a "provisional" plan for Japanese production of nuclear weapons. (The Pentagon Papers have shown, dramatically if needlessly, that all states have 'provisional" plans for every contingency: but some are more "provisional" than others.)

Once the political decision is made, Japan can amass an "effective stockpile of deterrent nuclear weapons" within two years. That is factual.

"Of course they will not be atomic bombs," to quote an impassive Japanese industrialist of Western experience and sardonic humour, "they will only be nuclear missiles for deferrent and self-defensive purposes."

The Japanese, it is sometimes forgotten, already have harnessed large "viable" resources of nuclear energy for "peaceful industrial purposes" — projected at 5,000 megawatts in four years.

The rockets which they are now making at low cost with Japanese efficiency are modelled on the U.S. Minuteman and can be equipped immediately with atomic warheads.

They already have put a satellite into orbit. They have the finance and technical experitise to partner Australia in a tentative project — now in blueprint — for a huge plant to produce nuclear fuel from Australia's extensive deposits of natural uranium.

An undisclosed number of Japanese warships, under the approved plan for naval expansion which will boost Japanese seapower to double the size of China's navy, will use nuclear power.

A formidable industrial-military complex already is handling armament production, with old zaibatsu-type giants such as Mitsubishi and Kawasaki ready and able to turn out increased orders of modern arms, aircraft, ships and equipment.

Despite the spiritual value of Chairman Mao's "Thoughts," Japan can achieve industrially in six months what China would need more than six years to achieve.

More imponderable but perhaps as imminent, in the wake of Nixon's revolutionary policies and Japan's restoration trends, is an expedient revision of Japan's relations with the Soviet Union.

Technically the two superpowers still are at war because Moscow will not agree to discuss a peace treaty on Tokyo's basic conditions for restoration of sovereignty over unimportant offshore islands which Russia seized in its one-week war against defeated Japan.

But as the Sino-Soviet rift widens, as the Soviet navy enters the Indian Ocean and as Moscow pockets its threaty with India, both nations share a common and growing anxiety over Peking's long-range policies in Asia and its slow but definite progress in nuclear striking ability.

Moscow cannot properly develop the resources of vulnerable Siberia without Japanese economic and industrial help. Already there has been unprecedented agreement between Tokyo and Moscow for joint construction of a Siberian port, and oil exploration in the Sea of Japan.

This unique project — to which Japan is contributing technological equipment and expert labor — will facilitate a joint profit-sharing search for petroleum on the Soviet continental shelf.

The Nixon mission, Soviet apprehension and Japanese resentment must hasten this Japanese-Soviet rapprochement — as well as Japan's nuclear emergence. The will, the ability, the resources and the capacity for rapid and massive military expansion in Japan await only governmental decision on an increased armament budget and a strong new defence policy.

★ ★ ★

The existing self-defence forces — all volunteer and well-trained — provide a highly professional nucleus for that expansion. (Chinese air force pilots receive only 20 to 40 hours of flying training a year. Japanese pilots get from 200 to 250 hours.)

Development of nuclear weapons is a natural and inevitable projection of expanding economic growth.

The atomic issue now is emotional only on the surface in the post-Hiroshima generation; it needed some dramatic international shock to precipitate a historic nuclear decision — and then only to restore "independent self-defence," one hastens to repeat. The Nixon bombshell was the catalyst.

A young naval officer educated at Cambridge and the Sorbonne, he passed this judgment on the postwar allied occupation:

"I believe that the occupation has been of great value to Japan. For two reasons. First, we Japanese are very proud. And there can be no true pride without some acquaintance with humility.

"Second, not all of our people have had the opportunity, as I have had, of travelling abroad, and observing Western customs and culture at first hand.

"In the shock of defeat at the hands of a powerful and ruthless enemy, some of our young people might easily have mistaken military victory for superior culture.

"Happily, the American occupation brought to Japan its own culture and living habits, and our people were able to study for tsemselves, personally, the behavior of the West, and so reassure themselves gratefully of the enduring superiority of the Japanese way of life."

Achilles Heel of Military Junta?

Greek Economy Weak

By JOE ALEX MORRIS, from Athens

It is an old axiom, at least partly true, that economies flourish under the heavy hand of dictators. Mussolini made the trains run on time. Germany leapt forward out of depression under the fanatic guidance of Adolf Hitler. The same can be said of Greece under the colonels. Since they seized power in 1967, the economic indicators have turned upwards and stayed that way.

It has been a prolonged economic boom, but now there are signs it is going sour. If they are confirmed, they bring up an interesting question:

Will economic ineptness do what various old politicians, resistance groups, and foreign pressures have failed to do and set Greece back on the road to democracy?

It is too early to answer this question, most experts here agree. And they differ widely in their interpretations of the current scene.

"We face bankruptcy next year unless vigorous measures are taken," says one economist who formerly occupied high posts under the colonels.

The core of the problem is the country's spiralling trade deficit. This reached $415 million last year and is running at $700 million rate this year.

Imports soared 17 per cent in the first five months of this year while exports actually went down by 4.5 per cent.

So far, the regime has managed to cover this deficit with increases in invisible returns plus foreign loans ($120 million in 1970). Gold and foreign currency reserves are actually up this year, and the government's credit remains good.

But its critics say the regime has been lucky, after a good start in the first years after seizing power. Early measures to stimulate the economy are now being continued for political reasons, at a time when the government should be cutting back on pump-priming.

Because they are supersensitive about their lacklustre public image, the colonels are reluctant to take steps which would further worsen it, these critics say. These include measures such as drastically cutting back on luxury imports and on non-essential rural and an improvement programs.

These critics believe the government should raise taxes and cut down on food imports, which reached $125 million last year. More than half of this bill was for meat, once a luxury but increasingly a common fare for average Greeks caught up in a consumer spending wave.

The government says its critics are much too pessimistic. The country's credit is good in the international market place, and foreign currency and gold reserves actually increased in the first half of 1971, at a time when they usually go down.

The import bill is rising. But more than half the imports last year were either capital goods or semi-finished and raw materials for industry, and some observers consider this a healty ratio.

Confidence in the Drachma remains, whether one accepts the government's inflation rate (3.5 per cent this year) or that of the critics (6 per cent).

Savings are at new highs, the Greek workers abroad (200,000 in Germany alone are increasingly banking their wages here rather than abroad, and so are the Greek shipowners whose vessels mostly sail under foreign flags.

Add to this the seemingly unending tourist boom, which brought in $194 million in 1970, a 29 per cent increase over the previous year.

Col. Papadopoulis
Leader of Greek junta

This trend seems likely to continue, if only because of disillusionment with past favorite sun spots such as Yugoslavia and Italy, where high prices rank with noise and pollution as chief customer complaints.

The colonels have done away with political instability, at least on the surface, and this has helped promote the economic boom. One sign of this is the fact that since 1967, some 500 foreign firms have established regional offices here.

They include 40 to 50 American firms, such as Ford and Coca Cola, some of which have had to move out of the Middle East because of the Arab boycott of companies blacklisted for dealing with Israel.

The colonels have offered them a tax-free haven here. Similarly, tax breaks, no nationalization guarantees, and freedom of take profits out of the country have encouraged many foreign firms to set up plants in Greece.

One result of this is that manufacturing exports are up four times from their figure in 1967, and now total 37 per cent of Greece's total exports.

Industrial production is rising by a healthy 9 per cent yearly and the order books in the expanding shipyards are full until 1973 while European yards are begging for work.

But behind the optimistic figures looms the expanding trade deficit. The government must borrow to balance its books — $120 million last year, and another $60 million from an American consortium so far this year.

Conservative Era Forecast For Highest Court in U.S.

By ROD CURRIE, from Washington

The retirement of two U.S. Supreme Court justices within six days gives President Nixon the unusual opportunity of naming four justices to the nine-man bench during only three years of a four-year presidential term.

A new conservative era in the highest court in the land is assured, observers said.

Because Supreme Court appointments are for life or until retirement, a president can determine the direction of the court far beyond his own term in the White House.

Although the last Republican president, Dwight Eisenhower, made five court appointments, Democratic Presidents John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson had the opportunity to name only three between them.

The highly-regarded Justice Hugo Black, 85, retired last week because of failing health. Justice John Harlan, 72, retired Thursday, also for health reasons.

Black, in particular, was considered one of the outstanding justices in the history of the court, although his liberal-leaning decisions often infuriated moderate Americans.

Harlan, however, frequently joined with the two earlier Nixon appointees, Chief Justice Warren Burger and Justice Harry A. Blackmun, on the conservative side.

Many liberals feel the major loss is Justice Black's retirement comes from the fact he was believed to have exercised great sway over several members who were not firmly aligned to either the conservative or liberal camps. His absence, along with the addition of two new Nixon appointees, could influence the unaligned more consistently to back conservative causes, observers feel.

Blacks' departure reduces the number of out-and-out liberals to two, including perhaps the most controversial member of the court, Justice William O. Douglas, 73, who has a heart ailment.

Although Nixon's opportunity to redirect the trend of the court is apparent, recent history proves it isn't that simple.

Before finally naming Blackmun, Nixon had nominated two Southerners, first Clement Haynsworth and then G. Harold Carswell, only to have the Democratic-controlled senate reject them on grounds they were ill-equipped for the high court.

Fear of a similar humiliation, some observers suggest, might restrain Nixon from going too far to the right in his next nominations.

Even when presidents do have their way, judges sometimes undergo ideological changes once on the bench. Black, who became a leading liberal even in historic integration decisions, was a Southerner and a one-time member of the Ku Klux Klan, devoted to white supremacy.

But Refusal May Be Invalid

Oil Firm's Rezoning Bid Falters

An oil company's application for rezoning of a parcel of land was turned down Thursday by Victoria City council but the decision may not be valid.

The property involved is at 1058 Clare. Standard Oil wants the land rezoned from R-1B (single-family) to C-LS (limited commercial service station) to expand an existing service station.

During the public hearing part of the meeting, acting mayor Ald. Percy Frampton asked if anyone wished to speak on the matter but no one from the audience replied.

Later during the meeting when aldermen debated the matter prior to final passing of a bylaw for rezoning of the land, a number of spectators said they hadn't had an opportunity to state their views.

After a brief consultation with the city solicitor, Frampton opened the public hearing again and several area residents spoke against the application.

The application was turned down although three aldermen voted in favor, and only two voted against. A two-thirds majority of council is needed to pass a rezoning bylaw; that would require six votes in favor.

Following the meeting it was found out that a representative of Standard Oil had been present during the first part of the meeting but had left before comments from the public were heard.

The city solicitor will report to council at the next meeting on whether a new public hearing must be called to give Standard Oil an opportunity to air its views before council.

Residents opposed the application on the grounds that expansion of the service station would subject them to the hazards of increased traffic. They also said there were enough big service stations in the area.

Provider Death Probed

An official inquiry into the drowning of an able seaman serving in the Esquimalt-based HMCS Provider is currently being conducted aboard the supply ship which tied up at San Diego, Calif. Thursday, Maritime Forces Pacific spokesmen reported.

The incident occurred at 2 a.m. Wednesday about 420 miles west of San Diego while the ship was enroute from Hawaii to the California port. AB William Gordon deBalinhard, of Vancouver, was seen falling over the side by members of the duty watch.

Spokesmen said that Rear-Admiral Richard Leir, commander, Maritime Command Pacific, has ordered a board of inquiry into the drowning of the steward. They said preliminary inquiry aboard the ship is being conducted to record circumstances leading to the mishap while events are still clear in the crew's mind.

Take Off Fat With Home Recipe Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drugstore and ask for Naran. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoonsful twice a day as needed and follow the Naran Reducing Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Summer Sidesteps Survey Ship Crew

The crew of the Canadian hydrographic survey ship Parizeau missed summer by a scant six hours Thursday when it arrived in Esquimalt Harbor at 4 p.m. after a three month research voyage in the Arctic.

"We had no summer at all up there this year," senior hydrographer Stan Huggett told the Colonist shortly after the ship docked.

"It was practically bad weather all the time. Lots of snow and winds blowing at times up to about 50 knots," he said and added the ship's 36 crewmen and 13 scientists hoped to have a bit of summer when they reached their home port here.

However, according to the weather office, summer officially ended at 9:45 a.m. Thursday and the forecast is for cooler weather with today's and Saturday's highs being in the low 60 degree range.

The vessel will undergo refit until late October when it will be used to gather detail on tidal currents and other data used in oceanographic studies.

Celts Felt For Nature

The Celts who occupied most of Europe about 3,000 years ago had a feeling for nature that still survives, Dr. Joel Hedgpeth, a marine scientist from Oregon, explained to a University of Victoria audience Thursday.

"They told us there are some sacred groves that should not be cut down, some sacred lakes that should not be drained."

Hedgpeth, director of Oregon State University's marine sciences centre and co-author of the book Between Pacific Tides, is studying the Celtic components of environmentalism. He was here as the first guest in the current University Lecture Series.

"It is obvious to me that material progress and Celtic attitudes were incompatible. But how has it been oppressed for so long? Here we have these people (the Celts) in Europe, now we have Europe being taken over by materialism."

The Celts had anti-establishment attitudes that did not jibe with those of subsequent Christians, who tampered with their myths, said Hedgpeth.

An example of such transmodification, he explained, was the great and ever-renewing bowl of Celtic tradition that became the cup of the Last Supper in Christian doctrine.

Examples of Celtic ideals are found in the literature of early American naturalists, he said.

City Seat Sought By Tindall

A stand against highrise development of any kind bordering the Inner Harbor will be taken by Better Business Bureau manager Bill Tindall if he is elected alderman in the Dec. 11 municipal elections, Tindall said Thursday.

Tindall, who was announcing his candidacy, said in an interview, however, that his anti-highrise platform could change if there was information not being made available to the public showing that highrise development would financially benefit the city.

Tindall said he has no intention of joining forces with any individual or group that is preparing a platform on "a team basis."

not been made under the reserves act since then.

The stabilization bill provides a one-shot, $100-million payment to farmers. It would replace reserves act payments that have been held back pending the new bill's passage.

Lang said holding back the reserves act payments was the only valid way to proceed.

The $100-million was more than the present act would have provided.

Prairie Holdup

The minister repeatedly accused opposition MPs from the prairies of holding up the bill, which he said would provide even bigger benefits to farmers in future.

But he said the government was loath to cut off debate with closure.

Draw on Fund

Along with the $100-million payment, the bill would set up a fund supported by the government and grain farmers, from which farmers could draw when the average gross income for the grains industry drops below a five-year average.

Earlier in the debate, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield vowed to unleash a prolonged attack against "the government's contempt for the very law itself," as shown by its refusal to make payments under the reserves act.

The government decision was the "most dangerous single event or precedent I've seen in Parliament in my day."

Bad Enough

It was bad enough that the government was breaking the law. It was worse that it was denying it.

Under the reserves act, passed in 1956, the government makes montly payments to wheat board pools for grain held in commercial storage over 178 million bushels. About the end of a crop year — July 31 — the board divides the money from the pool among wheat farmers.

The government proposed to make a $100-million transitional payment for the period between the end of the reserves act payments and the establishment of the fund. But the payment, part of the legislation, has yet to receive parliamentary approval.

Plane Sabo Made Targ

MONTREAL (CP) — A diplomatic conference attended by 61 countries gave unanimous support Wednesday to an international convention aimed at punishing anyone who interferes with the safety of civil aircraft.

The convention, however, will have no force as an international document until it is ratified by 10 member nations of the International Civil Aviation Organization, and will be binding only on those nations that ratify it.

The conference, which began Sept. 8 and ended Thursday, was held under the auspices of the Montreal-based ICAO, which is affiliated with the United Nations.

A spokesman for the organization said "it would probably take 13 or 14 months" for the 10 countries to ratify the document.

The conference was the result of an emergency general assembly of ICAO, called in June 1970, in which a resolution was adopted condemning all forms of interference with civil aviation.

The resolution, which became known as the Montreal Declaration, was aimed particularly at acts of sabotage, one of which caused the crash of a Swissair plane and the loss of 47 lives the previous February.

Long Debate

Opposition flurries against the suspension of the reserves act payments were first aired in an unusually long emergency debate — it lasted until 3:31 a.m. EDT — last Thursday.

Stanfield described Lang's earlier defence of the move — the former dean of the University of Saskatchewan law school said he would go to jail if it was necessary to pass his new bill — as pitiful.

Lang had been unable to deny he was breaking the law and he pretended he was acting out of bravery, Stanfield said.

"What does he want — a Victoria Cross?"

'Last Refuge'

"Patriotism is the last refuge of a scoundrel. Selfrighteousness is the last refuge for a man who has done wrong.

Stanfield's speech was followed by a similar burst of accusations by New Democratic Leader David Lewis.

The prime minister and Lang were both former law teachers; but both were breaking the law "without conscience and without reason."

Amount Owed

He proposed an amendment to the motion that would have the government pay to Western farmers the amount owed to them since the reserves act payments were suspended. Estimates are that about $90 million would have been paid into the pools under the act since then.

Lang reitereated his stand that the stabilization bill would excell the reserves act. It applied to grains other than wheat, it would not lead to jam-ups in the elevator system and it would give bigger aid to small farmers.

He suggested that opposition MPs had held up the legislation to better their chances in the June Saskatchewan provincial election.

Eye on Voters

They were continuing to filibuster with an eye on the Nov. 8 federal byelection in the Saskatchewan riding of Assiniboia.

Erick Nielsen (PC—Yukon) followed Lang and the shouts and jibes came at fever pitch as he blamed Prime Minister Trudeau for the "wilful and deliberate destruction of responsible government," describing him as "the most dangerous prime minister in Canada's history."

The "emasculation of this Parliament" started in the Pearson Liberal years and had been accelerated by Trudeau, the Yukon lawyer said.

Curse You, Heathrow

LONDON (AP) — Heathrow Airport officials went scurrying for their Bibles Thursday when an RAF pilot brought down an Old Testament curse from the mid-Atlantic skies.

The VC-10 pilot was on a planned non-stop flight from Newfoundland to London when he was asked to stop in Keflavik, Iceland, to pick up equipment.

"Deuteronomy, Chapter 27, Verse 18," the pilot radioed back. Airport thumbs flicked through the pages and got the message: "Cursed be he that maketh the blind to wander out of the way."

Plane Saboteurs Made Target

The resolution, which became known as the Montreal Declaration, was aimed particularly at acts of sabotage, one of which caused the crash of a Swissair plane and the loss of 47 lives the previous February.

Arab commandos at first claimed then later denied responsibility for the action.

The draft convention states that a person commits an offence when he unlawfully and intentionally:

- Commits a violent act against a person on board an airborne flight if it is likely to endanger the aircraft;
- Takes part in placing aboard an aircraft any device that may destroy an aircraft in flight or make it incapable of flight;
- Destroys or damages air navigation facilities if such an act is likely to endanger the safety of an aircraft in flight.

The document states that for the purposes of the convention, an aircraft will be considered in flight from the beginning of preflight preparation by ground personnel until 24 hours after any landing.

The convention will not apply to military, customs or police aircraft.

The convention calls for such offences to be made extraditable.

Announcement of the proposal was made Thursday by association presient Earl Richards at the first open meeting to be held by the publishers' association, which has been meeting at the Empress Hotel.

The decision to hold the meeting with the press present followed a 45-minute discussion in a board session and resulted in the calling of a special general session, rather than a press conference as had been planned earlier.

Richards did not comment when asked if the decision to hold a meeting open to the press had been in any way prompted by the report of the special Senate committee on mass media, released late last year.

One of the criticisms of the committee, chaired by Senator Keith Davey, had been that the newspaper industry was secretive about its business operations.

Richards did, however, deny that the restructuring proposal had anything to do with the Davey report. "The restructuring has been studied by the (roles) committee for more than a year," he said.

The Davey report also accused the industry of failure to train and motivate its news personnel properly.

Richards said an effect of the restructuring would be to up-grade editorial departments, and encourage emphasis on journalism training.

The Canadian Managing Editors' Conference would be encouraged to work closely with the new editorial division, he said.

Tory House Leader Role Gift-Wrapped for Wallace

One-Man Opposition?

By DON COLLINS

The Progressive Conservative Party of B.C., reportedly on the verge of a rebirth, meets in Vancouver today and some of the discussion will centre around Oak Bay's Scott Wallace.

There are some members of the executive who think the outspoken Wallace is the man to lead the party's B.C. wing out of the political wilderness.

Wallace, who remains independent since his resignation last month from the Social Credit party, will not be present for the quarterly of the conservatives.

But he says now that he is giving as much thought to joining the Conservatives as he is to the idea of forming an entirely new party.

Last week, when he first mentioned the new party concept, there appeared much less likelihood of his joining the Tories.

But he has been swayed somewhat by the response since then.

"Everyone who has responded to that story encourages me to stay in the political picture," the MLA for Oak Bay says. "But opinion seems to be equally divided. Half of them say it is a good idea to create a new party along conservative lines that would be an alternative to the Social Credit party.

"But the other half — quite a few of them put it quite bluntly and say it would be much more sensible for me to join the existing Conservative party and work to convert it into the party I envisage."

Last week he said he didn't think the existing Conservative party lived up to his ideals.

He has three principles that the party of his choice must offer. The main theme is that the rights of the individual must be sacred.

In an interview Thursday, B.C. Conservative leader John de Wolfe, said from Vancouver that he has had several meetings with Wallace and that he too favors a new look for the present Conservative party — one which he thinks would meet Wallace's standards.

He is not, though, ready to say he would step aside to let Wallace fill his role as provincial leader.

He does, however, want him as Conservative House leader in the B.C. Legislature.

'. . . it'd be sensible to join and convert the existing party . . .'

Some of their less charitable critics delight in referring to them as "B.C.'s toothless Tories," but de Wolfe and his band of followers (nobody seems able to say just how many there are) claim this will change.

They are trying to change the party in appearance and to a degree, in philosophy.

De Wolfe speaks fondly of a platform that he calls "twenty policies for people" and which includes such proposals as deferred property tax for senior citizens, tax incentives by which workers and others could acquire shares of the B.C. economy, and the removal of school tax on property over a period of five years.

He said Wallace told him during their discussions that Wallace favored a new type of Conservative party.

"He has made it very clear he wants nothing to do with the old Conservative party — to which I said 'amen'," de Wolfe said.

He said he has met with Wallace off and on since last February. He said three members of the 27-man Conservative provincial executive approached Wallace recently "with the proposition that he interest himself with the leadership of the B.C. party."

De Wolfe said he was not immediately made aware of this.

"If anything, this has done more harm than good," he said.

On the subject of Wallace becoming Conservative house leader de Wolfe said:

"We discussed the question of whether Premier Bennett might not throw some road blocks up in terms of recognition as house leader.

"It (being house leader) makes a tremendous difference. He would have unlimited time in throne speech debate and budget debate, and on debate concerning major legislation."

She came to Victoria to meet with Wallace Tuesday night and part of her report to today's session will deal with that meeting.

Like de Wolfe, she says she is impressed with the 42-year-old Scot's frankness and what she sees as sincerity.

Service Planes Circle Island

Sky Eye on Oil

By BRUCE LOWTHER

Since Jan. 1, 1970, members of the Canadian armed forces have been conducting regular aerial circle searches of the waters around Vancouver Island for possible oil poliution by ships, and territorial water violations.

The disclosure was made Thursday in Victoria Provincial Court by Major Marshall Brock Dempster during the trial of a Greek cruise ship skipper on a charge laid under the federal oil pollution prevention regulations of 1968.

Dempster testified the sovereignty and pollution aspects of coastal searches was stepped up at the start of 1970. He said a normal flight leaves Victoria International Airport, goes up Georgia Strait, flies over Port Hardy and the rest of the north Island, comes down the west coast and returns around Sooke to Victoria.

He gave no indication how often the flights take place.

The trial involved a charge that Alevisos Klaoudatos, skipper of the Greek cruise ship Orpheus, committed an offence in that he was in charge on or about last July 14 when the vessel was about 2.8 miles from Cape Lazo in the Comox area, and when "a person or persons unknown" discharged an oil or oily mixture contrary to the regulations.

Dempster and co-pilot Captain James Cecil Parker testified they were in a twin-engined Tracker aircraft at about 6:40 a.m. July 14 when what appeared to be an oil slick was sighted in the Comox-Campbell River area.

The plane flew in a northwesterly direction along the track of the material to a ship they said was the Orpheus. The flyers said the "slick" was about 10 miles long, about 75 yards wide, had no gaps, seemed to start at the stern of the ship and was iridescent at the edges and a lighter color than the surrounding water.

"Everywhere the ship went, the slick went too," Dempster testified. "And it got bigger."

RCMP Sgt. Lew Dempsey testified he spoke to Klaoudatos Aug. 30 in Victoria and was told laundry work had been done July 14 "and they had discharged the laundry material from the ship and that could possibly explain" the incident.

David Campbell, a federal transport department marine surveyor, said Klaoudatos denied to him July 29 in Victoria oil was involved.

Defence lawyer Donovan Lowry of Vancouver spent considerable time attacking witnesses presented by prosecutor Dermod Owen-Flood for their lack of expertise in the case.

Cross-examination of the flyers, Dempsey, Campbell and Defence Research Board chemist Richard Sewell, presented as an expert witness, took the trial to 5:30 p.m., an hour past the usual closing time for court.

Indications were at least three witnesses remained to be heard, along with various legal arguments, and the schedule of the Orpheus became a key factor.

Lowry explained the ship was just in Victoria for the day and had to leave at 6:30 p.m. Thursday for a cruise to Alaska. It would return Oct. 1 for another day, go back to Alaska, return Oct. 9 and after that, Klaoudatos had orders to return the vessel to Greece.

Ostler said the court calendar is full but the lawyers agreed to try to rearrange other trials so Klaoudatos can learn his fate before the scheduled return to Greece. The case was adjourned to Monday to set a definite date for completion of the trial.

Attack Case Remanded

Lloyd Earl Miller, facing a three-count charge after an incident early Sept. 12 in Campbell River, was remanded to Provincial Court here when he made a brief appearance Thursday in Victoria Provincial Court.

Judge William Ostler set a remand to next Wednesday for the charge, which contains one count each of assaulting a peace officer, possession of an offensive weapon and theft involving less than $50.

RCMP said Sept. 12 Constable George Braithwaite, 23, was investigating a reported burglary at the Town Centre motel in Campbell River when he was hit acros the head with a tire iron. He retaliated by shooting his asailant in the chest and wrist.

Papers Propose More Stress On News Side

A proposed restructuring of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association would place greater emphasis on the editorial side of the newspaper business.

Announcement of the proposal was made Thursday by association presient Earl Richards at the first open meeting to be held by the publishers' association, which has been meeting at the Empress Hotel.

The decision to hold the meeting with the press present followed a 45-minute discussion in a board session and resulted in the calling of a special general session, rather than a press conference, as had been planned earlier.

Richards did not comment when asked if the decision to hold a meeting open to the press had been in any way prompted by the report of the special Senate committee on mass media, released late last year.

One of the criticisms of the committee, chaired by Senator Keith Davey, had been that the newspaper industry was secretive about its business operations.

Richards did, however, deny that the restructuring proposal had anything to do with the Davey report. "The restructuring has been studied by the (roles) committee for more than a year," he said.

The Davey report also accused the industry of failure to train and motivate its news personnel properly.

Richards said an effect of the restructuring would be to up-grade editorial departments, and encourage emphasis on journalism training.

The Canadian Managing Editors' Conference would be encouraged to work closely with the new editorial division, he said.

"We feel this will provide a structure that will serve the best interests of all newspapers," Richards said.

The new structure would eliminate the many committees existing now and divide the committee responsibility into five divisions — advertising, editorial, circulation, administration and production.

These divisions would be able to allocate duties to subdivisions, as they chose, Richards said.

But Some Reservations

Aldermen Favor Tax Relief Plan

Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock's tax relief scheme for senior citizens received approval in principle Thursday from city council but several aldermen said they had reservations about the proposal.

The mayor's scheme calls for deferral of property tax increases at an interest rate of 8 per cent for all homeowners 65 and over, until they either die or sell their property.

Participation in the scheme would be on a voluntary basis.

Ald. Clyde Savage told council financial help for senior citizens was "something every city is looking for," but this particular proposal wouldn't help anyone.

"I'm not saying the idea is wrong, but I'd like to see the provincial government come up with something instead of us," he said.

Ald. Peter Pollen said he would like to see an analysis of the anticipated cost to the taxpayer.

Shortly after the mayor announced details of his plan, spokesman for the city's Silver Threads Service, an organization of senior citizens, told the Colonist members of the group were opposed to the scheme.

Anyone taking advantage of the proposed tax deferral would suffer when he sold his house, the spokesman said. At that time, he would have to pay the back taxes plus 8 per cent interest.

. . . but to compromise a size or two

Spotter from East

The twin-engined Tracker aircraft involved in the Comox area pollution case was part of the VS-880 Squadron from CFB Shearwater, N.S., Maritime Forces Pacific spokesmen told the Colonist Thursday.

They said that the increased coastal surveillance around Vancouver Island waters involves two air squadrons — the VU-33 Squadron based year-round near the Victoria International Airport at Patricia Bay and the squadron from Shearwater.

One group from Shearwater comes to Vancouver Island during July for operational exercises (which includes coastal surveillance) and the other group makes its patrols during August. During that time, the eastern planes are based at the same location as the VU-33 Squadron.

Broad Declines In All Sectors

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market recorded broad declines in all sectors as prices closed sharply lower for the fifth consecutive session in moderate trading Thursday.

Observers said the continued uncertainty surrounding the U.S. dollar, combined with the increasing number of layoffs in Canadian industry is having a serious effect on market prices.

Canadian Tire A lost 2⅛ to $34, Supertest ordinary 1¼ to $53¼, Four Seasons Hotels ¾ to $12¾, Denison ⅞ to $24¾ and Scurry-Rainbow ⅝ to $17⅞.

Bell Canada lost ¼ to $44⅞, Imperial Oil ½ to $29⅝, Consumers Distributing ⅝ to $25⅝, CP Ltd. ⅝ to $67, Pine Point ¾ to $26¾ and Moore ⅛ to $35⅝.

Falconbridge recovered part of the sharp losses suffered in recent sessions, closing at $86¼, up 1¼. Wednesday the stock closed at $85, a four-year low.

Cominco was down ⅜ to $21⅞ after announcing that further drilling had confirmed the significance of previously-encountered zinc-lead mineralization on Little Cornwallis Island in the Canadian Arctic.

Mixed Day

VANCOUVER — Prices were mixed in sluggish trading. On the up side was Mercuira, leading industrial trader which rose 5 cents to $1.10. Neonex was off 15 to $3.40. Royal Canadian Ventures topped activity in oils, rising a nickel at $1.20. Pyramid finished at 54 cents after rising 19 to be the top trader in mines.

Slight Reversal

NEW YORK (AP) — Although the selling pressure that materialized in the previous session nearly dried up, stock market prices still closed slightly lower. Trading was moderate.

The NYSE index of 1,300 common stocks slipped 0.05 to 54.37.

Bargain-hunting in issues depressed by the slide Wednesday and early Thursday helped to give a more robust tone to the market, analysts said.

Five in Row

Canadian Breweries, which announced a long-term co-operative deal with United Breweries of Copenhagen, slipped ⅛ to $6½.

Anaconda Strike Ends

BUTTE, Mont. (AP)— The copper strike, launched months ago for higher wages, is over but it may be several weeks before all 6,100 striking workers are back on the job with the Anaconda Company.

The remaining unionists striking the company voted overwhelmingly Wednesday in favor of returning to work.

Several hours later the manager of Anaconda's Montana operations, Martin Hannifan, said some workers would not be called back immediately because of a stockpile of concentrates from Anaconda's Utah and Nevada divisions.

MFA Issue All Gone

By GEORGE GIBSON
Business Editor

For a radio man, Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich gets a big kick out of reading the newspapers. Just take Thursday, when he read on Page 21 of the Wall Street Journal, that the $20 million (U.S.) 8⅜ per cent sinking fund debentures offered by the Municipal Finance Authority of B.C. have been oversubscribed after the first day.

Almost unnecessarily, the Journal in its Wednesday edition said the issue was "well received."

This will be good news for 23 of the 28 regional districts who are counting on borrowing that $20 million for water, sewer and pollution control and abatement projects.

Mayor Curtis is chairman of the finance authority. Last June the authority rejected tenders for the sum of $15 million (Canadian funds) with a net interest cost of 8.94 per cent.

Bye, Bye Bell Bottoms?

It had to happen. The Globe and Mail's most recent report on business says that the conservative backlash is finally being felt in the male fashion world and this fall's suits are going to more closely resemble the ones that you may have put well back in the wardrobe in 1965.

However, what will evolve will be a compromise between the subdued fashion and the peacock-like attire that has been almost forced upon us. The report states that neckties will remain rivetted at the 4-4½ inch width no matter what else happens.

The report also states that suits likely will rise $5 by winter.

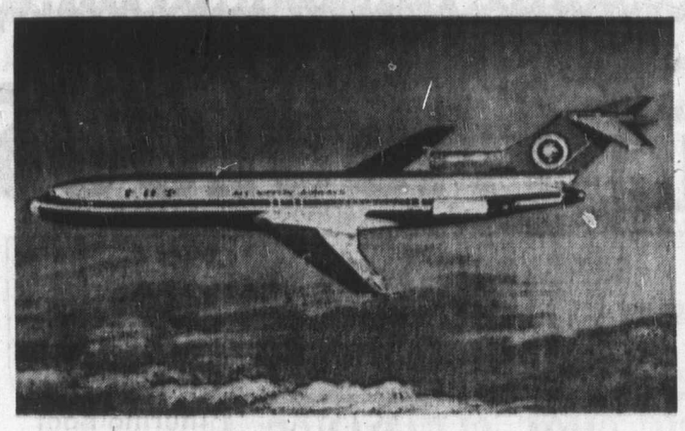
It's Hard To Credit

Another quick quirk in the news. A Canadian businessman has bought his own firm from an American company. Jack Reed, Toronto, president of Dashew Business Machines of Canada, recently bought control from the U.S. owners. His specialty? The manufacture of plastic credit cards. The company makes 75-80 per cent of the Canadian market.



Boeing Makes $80 Million Sale

Devaluation News Chops at Dollar

LONDON (AP) — The United States dollar dropped sharply in value on most of the world's big exchange markets Thursday in heavy trading. The decline was attributed to reports that a leading world monetary body is proposing a dollar devaluation of 3 to 5 per cent.

The Nixon administration has been resisting devaluation, hoping that an upward revaluation of other currencies would solve the world monetary crisis.

The dollar hit a record low in West Germany. It also declined in Britain, Switzerland and Japan. Only Paris, among Europe's leading exchanges, recorded an improvement in the dollar.

The big drop came on the heels of unconfirmed reports that the International Monetary Fund is suggesting the devaluation of the dollar as part of a general realignment of major currencies.

The report by the Japanese news agency Kyodo was regarded as accurate by informed circles in Bonn and other European capitals. It was discounted in Washington.

The IMF, based in Washington, is an organization of 117 countries that seeks to promote monetary co-operation and exchange stability throughout the world.

It is meeting in Washington this weekend to talk over the crisis touched off by President Nixon's proposals to stabilize the monetary system have been submitted to member governments for study.

There was little doubt that the steep drop in the dollar came from the Kyodo account. The London market was quiet until the Japanese news agency released its story, then turned hectic immediately.

Advertising on Upswing

Canada's daily newspapers may be suffering the pangs of rising production costs, but they are not feeling any advertising pinch.

Clyde McDonald, general manger of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Association, told members Thursday newspaper advertising has been winning a "major revolution in the share of advertising dollars."

Speaking at a special general meeting in the Empress Hotel, McDonald said the first half of 1971 showed newspapers gaining the largest share of the advertising media dollar.

Specifically, he said the newspaper industry had captured 94.5 million of the advertising market so far in 1971, with an increase over television of 37 per cent in August, the highest ever experienced.

He said he estimated television would drop three share points to 46, and newspapers would gain three.

Advertising from the car industry reported by association members was $13 million this year to date, an increase over last year's $9 million, he said.

McDonald said the soap business, travel, government, and finance and insurance advertising were all up with food being the only one showing a decline both in revenue and shareof the dollar.

"We have as a prime target the preparation of a cost-efficiency rate report in the food field," he said, and added the prime sources for report would be the big markets of Toronto and Montreal.

In discussion with Canadian Press, the national newsgathering co-operative, the CDNPA earlier in the week told CP the disappearance of The Evening Telegram from the Toronto scene should not diminish in any way the news emphasis from that city.

CDNPA president Earl Richards told the membership the executive board, which had been meeting for three days prior to the special meeting, had approved action in three areas:

- The Cigarette Products Act — the association will make further representation to Health Minister John Munro to consider amending the act to alter the form of cigarette advertising to remove persuasion or promotion, rather than to ban advertising;
- Combines Investigation Act — the association will make representation to the federal government to suggest alterations in the section of the act which now limits newspapers in the practice of giving reduced rates for volume advertising.
- Cable television — the association will continue to press for reservation of channels on cable television for future use in facsimile reproduction of newspapers for readers.

A notice of motion was read to stipulate a two-thirds majority of the association's select committee would be necesary in future to approve association representations to government.

The motion will be presented to the general membership at the next general meeting in April.

The association's executive board has been meeting in the Empress since Tuesday, with Thursday's special meeting culminating the board's business. It was opened to the pres.

Real Estate Row Simmering

VANCOUVER (CP) — The salesmen's division of the Vancouver Real Estate Board Thursday backed its directors in open opposition to the board.

With only a smattering of opposing votes about 350 salesmen approved a vote of confidence in the directors.

President George Shaw and vice-president Melvin Stoney said they expected to have their positions on the board revoked as a result of the meeting.

Stoney told the salesmen that their division has "no rights whatsoever" under the constitution of the board.

Shaw said the salesmen's directors have tried repeatedly to negotiate with the board but that the board has tried to downgrade the salesmen's position.

Shaw, Stoney and a third director of the salesmen's division, Harold Woolsey, claimed in a Supreme Court action Wednesday that the real estate board multiple listing service was "a restraint of trade affecting all members."

In a writ filed in Vancouver registry the three men asked for a declaration that it is not within the objectives of the board to operate the service and such objectives are not permitted under the B.C. Societies Act.

SAWMILLING — CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

Our Tahsis sawmill on Vancouver Island's scenic west coast will shortly expand its operations thus creating employment opportunities for meaningful careers in an industry which employs many thousands of men in British Columbia.

We welcome applications from men with either sawmill experience or with good employment records in other industrial fields. Advancement is open as new skills are acquired.

Wage rates, usual coast forest products fringe benefits, and good working conditions in a fully modern mill make these attractive opportunities worthy of serious consideration. Interviews will be arranged and applicants should submit a short resume of their work history.

PRESTIGE SPACE FOR RENT

Victoria's Newest Retail and Office Building

NOOTKA COURT

NOW UNDER CONSTRUCTION
Between Humboldt and Courtney Streets

Across from the Empress Hotel a covered Mall will lead from Humboldt Street to Courtney Street serving Retail Stores, Restaurants, and the new Liquor Store. The main court area, having Totem Poles and other Indian Art features, is in the centre of the building from which an elevator will serve the main Mall area and the second storey offices which are linked by a bridge. The interior landscaped roof garden will be surrounded by approximately 13,000 sq. ft. of air conditioned office space partitioned to tenants' requirements.

The design and construction of the building intends to preserve the atmosphere of Old Victoria combining it with the most modern conveniences of shopping and office activities.

Provin... COU...

A case in which a Victoria woman and her husband told almost completely opposite stories to those of the police was decided against the woman Thursday in Victoria Provincial Court by Judge William Ostler.

Mrs. Jessie Alvina Roland, 47, of 1215 Pandora, tried Sept. 16 on a charge of obstructing a peace officer, was found guilty by Ostler and fined $200.

Two Victoria policemen testified during the trial her husband was stopped late Aug. 27 for check of possible impaired driving. They said Mrs. Roland struck one officer and tried to obstruct the other, and they added they gave demand, warning and arrest statements.

The Rolands said there were no blows or obstruction and they did not hear the statements. Their lawyer, Harold Turnham, said the police may have "used more force than was necessary."

In his judgment Thursday, Ostler said he accepted the police story because of the demeanor of the Rolands in the witness box, the fact both admitted they had been drinking Aug. 27 and, most important, inconsistencies in their evidence.

He indicated the key inconsistency was the fact the Rolands denied hearing a demand for a breath test, an arrest for impaired driving and warnings against obstruction but admitted hearing a demand that Roland get out of the car, which led to a struggle and the charge against the wife.

As for the statement about force, the judge said the officers had "reasonable and probable grounds" to believe a driving offence had been committed. It was their "right and duty" to remove Roland from the car and, after making the demand, "were entitled to use force when he resisted."

Ostler approved an application by prosecutor John Macintyre to withdraw a charge under the Legal Professions Act against Mrs. Margaret Leitch and B.C. Stenographic, Tax and Accounting Services, 918 Government. The charge, which now is killed, concerned alleged unlawful engaging in the practice of law by drawing up incorporation papers.

Mayor's Vote Clarified

Oak Bay Mayor Frances Elford said Wednesday her vote in favor of a bylaw to designate the Newport-Windsor block as a development area under Section 702A of the Municipal Act was in no way connected with the previous controversial development proposal for the area.

In a written statement to the Colonist, she said, "... The twin-tower proposal of Graham Development is a dead issue and has been since the night of the public meeting, Sept. 20."

The development area concept, provided under Section 702A, the mayor said, would permit a mixed type of development, which would be suitable in the area in question, as the difference in price of the various parcels of land seemed to indicate that a variety of methods of development were desirable rather than one overall project.

SEATTLE (AP) — Seattle police were searching Wednesday for a teenage girl they say shot and killed a 55-year-old grocer following a robbery that netted her about $30.

In the court section of Judge E. F. N. Robinson, a $250 fine was set for Mrs. Marie Cramer, 67, of 1680 Poplar, who was found guilty following a trial on a charge of theft involving less than $50 — the shoplifting of items worth $1.28 Aug. 30 from Shoppers Drug Mart, 1300 Douglas.

Council Puts Thetis Park Back at Starting Place

By way of one motion, three amendments and about 45 minutes of debate, Victoria city council steered the Thetis Lake controversy back to square one Thursday.

Council decided to:

- Include approximately $30,000 in next year's budget for new toilet and changeroom facilities at Thetis Lake Park;
- Continue negotiations with the Capital Regional Board aimed at selling the park to the board;
- Ask the Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Committee to share the annual maintenance costs with the city.

Which is what council decided last year and several times before then.

Last year, the intermunicipal committee declined to split the maintenance cost on a Greater Victoria basis; council turned down the parks department's request for new toilets, and chopped the $30,000 frofn the budget.

Recently the regional board told the city it doesn't have the money to purchase the park.

The decision to continue negotiations with the regional board was made through an amendment to the main motion. Originally, negotiations for possible sale of the park were to be shelved until next year.

Another amendment resulted in council's decision to bring the matter before the intermunicipal committee. A third amendment calling for dedication of the park "in perpetuity" was moved by Ald. Clyde Savage, but didn't get council's support.

Thetis Lake is located about six miles north of the city limits. Most of its 1,100 acres are undeveloped. Years ago, the park was part of the city's watershed system.

Skilling's Word

Reid: Razzmatazz

Trade Minister Waldo Skillings has a word for the controversy over the proposed Reid waterfront development — razzmatazz.

Since he is MLA for Victoria, he was asked Thursday if people had been approaching him for his views on the plan that would put high towers beside the Inner Harbor.

"I've been getting enough razzmatazz about that," he said as he prepared to enter a cabinet meeting. "I've got nothing to say about that. I'll let the municipal people look after that. I'll look after mine."

He disappeared before it could be determined if he meant he would look after his own razzmatazz.

The 1972 Mercedes-Benz Motor Show

The name Mercedes-Benz is known and respected throughout the world. But few know its founders share credit for inventing the automobile in 1886.

Gottlieb Daimler and Karl Benz were engineering purists. Men who valued technical perfection and flawless workmanship above all else. Today, such men still make the design decisions at Mercedes-Benz. As a result, even the least costly models offer braking, suspension, and steering systems closer to a Le Mans Grand Prix racing machine than to any domestic luxury car.

Unconventional? Defiantly so.

But Mercedes-Benz does not build the conventional car, and never will.

1. 220/220D "The least costly models"

Economy with engineering features still unavailable on the most expensive domestic sedans. The 220 has 4-wheel disc brakes, fully independent suspension, seats five comfortably, and holds 20.5 cu. ft. of luggage. The 220D is similar but with a diesel engine that gives 30 miles or more for the price of a gallon of gasoline. Model 220 from $6,295.

2. 250 "A most desirable sports sedan"

Handles more like a sports car than a sedan. It should. The near perfect mating of suspension, brakes, powerplant and functional design closely resembles that of a true sports car. It's a joy to feel this jewel respond to your every whim. Spirited ohc 2.8 litre engine with brakes designed to be even stronger than the engine. From $7,265.

3. 250 Coupe "A beautiful design concept"

The sharply raked windscreen and graceful roofline are indeed attractive. But the true beauty of this car lies in its performance: totally alive and obedient. Whirl it around hairpin bends. Aim it down an expressway: it tracks like an arrow. No drift. No feeling of mushiness. Apply the brakes: no loss of control, no fade. From $8,815.

4. 280SE/SE 4.5/SEL 4.5 "All day comfort"

Here's luxury of control that erases tensions that build in a day's driving. Orthopedically contoured seats are designed for extended stays, not demonstration rides. Even the steering column has a shock absorber. The 280SE's engine is a fuel-injected 6. Models SE 4.5 and SEL 4.5 have 4½ litre V-8s. From $10,370.

5. 350SL 4.5 "The civilised sports car"

The new 350SL is more than a sports car. It is neither loud nor cramped. The 4.5 litre V-8 engine offers refined, powerful, silent running. Interior appointments and driving comfort equal to Mercedes-Benz sedans. A sports touring car with comfort and reliability that may go unmatched for years. From $12,765.

6. 300SEL 4.5 "Roomier than any domestic sedan"

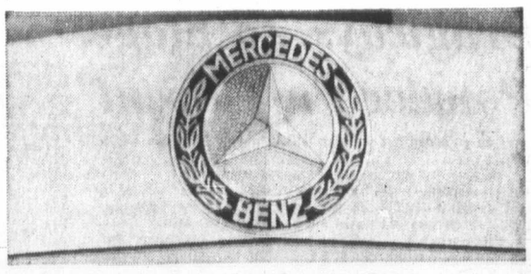
Engineered for effortless high-speed cruising. 4.5 litre V-8 engine, automatic fuel injection, air suspension, standard equipment extends to electric windows and air conditioning. Although it's 2 feet shorter than its rivals there's more room inside! A modest victory for those who seek comfort not status. From $15,545.

7. 600 "The ultimate motor car"

Our engineers were challenged to build the most luxurious automobile to grace a highway—and at the same time the most roadworthy. Each 600 is crafted and checked for 50 days on the production line, then road tested for 300 miles under every possible driving condition. Available in 5 and 7 passenger versions. From $30,965.

8. The revolutionary experimental C-111

Our latest innovation. Powered by the first high-performance rotary piston Wankel engine, the C-111 accelerates from 0-60 mph in 4.9 seconds. Other Mercedes-Benz pioneering achievements include sharing credit for inventing the automobile, fuel-injected engines and the first diesel car. Sorry, the C-111 is not for sale.



9. 8 decades of engineering excellence

Over the years the Mercedes-Benz star has become one of the world's most recognized automotive symbols. *Prices shown are suggested retail, exclusive of some options such as sun-roof, F.O.B. Toronto. Provincial taxes extra. Standard: 4-wheel disc brakes on all models, automatic transmission except for 220D. Air-conditioning 280SE and up.

Nansemond and Filion Upset Albatross in Little Brown Jug

Nansemond, driven by co-owner Herve Filion of Lachute, Que., streaks across the finish line for a three-quarter length victory over Albatross, driven by Stanley Dancer, in the fourth and deciding heat of the $102,964 Little Brown Jug at Delaware County Fairgrounds in Ohio. Albatross, seeking pacing's Triple Crown and such a prohibitive favorite that stewards barred him from the pari-mutuel betting, edged Nansemond by a head to win the second division. Nansemond topped the field of the fastest four horses in each of the two divisions forcing the raceoff. H. T. Luca was winner of the first heat but was last in the three-horse raceoff. Time of the final heat was 2:04 2-5. In the third heat Nansemond covered the mile in 1:57 2-5.—(AP)

Cougars Nip Nats In Opening Game

Victoria Cougars edged Vancouver Nats, 3-2, Thursday before a small crowd at Vancouver's Kerrisdale Arena in the first exhibition game for the two new entries in the Western Canada Hockey League.

Ervie Miller's goal, on a rebound off a shot by Gary Donaldson at 16:49 of the third period accomplished what the Cougars couldn't do in the B.C. Junior Hockey League all last season — beat Vancouver on the Mainland.

STEADY IN GOAL

With coach Fred Hucul getting steady performances from goalkeepers Dave Maynard and Darryl Fedorak, who combined for 37 stops, the line of Miller, Donaldson and Denny McLean led the attack.

McLean gave Victoria a 2-1 lead on a power-play in the second period, banging in a rebound, also from a shot by Donaldson at 7:00. Cougars' Ron Winkler got the only goal of the opening period when his drifter from the blue line caught goalkeeper Jack Cumming napping at 13:24.

Nats' Brian Ogilvie tied the score at 1-1 early in the second period, scoring while defenceman Pete Kay of Victoria was serving a minor penalty.

A total of 27 penalties were called including majors to Vancouver's Rob Little, a former Cougar, and Donaldson in the second period.

PLAY TONIGHT

Cougars take on the Nats' BCJHL farm club, Richmond Centennials, tonight in Richmond and face the Nats Saturday night in Memorial Arena starting at 8 p.m.

Wurmlinger called Bishop from his home in Kamloops, asking for a tryout. When Bishop informed the six-foot, 185-pound left winger that the Cougars had purchased him from Swift Current Broncos of the WCHL, he was astounded, saying, "You WHAT?" Wurmlinger will be in Victoria on Sunday to join the Cougars.

Smith, a six-foot, 180-pound winger, will join the Cougars tonight in Richmond. Ernie McLean, coach and general manager of the New Westminster Bruins of the WCHL from whom the Cougars got Smith in a trade, telephned Bishop to inform him of Smith's arrival on the Mainland from Brandon.

Bishop also learned Thursday that Chris Riddell, who toiled for the Cougars for last two seasons in the BCJHL, has been cut by Edmonton Oil Kings of the WCHL. Riddell and Lon Miles were sent to Edmonton on Aug. 9 for Dave Okranic, Brian Newbert, Jan Kasoak and Phil Blake with a further player to be sent by the Oil Kings on Oct. 1.

Riddell is back in Victoria and speculation is that he may be the "player to be named" to complete the deal.

Riddell finished with 36 goals and 61 asists for 97 points last season, fourth in the league.

Lafleur at Home On 'Big' Line

Stepping in between Yvan Cournoyer and Frank Mahovlich hasn't been too much of a problem so far for Guy Lafleur, the National Hockey League's first amateur draft pick this summer.

Lafleur, who has taken over the spot vacated by retiring Jean Beliveau, scored twice and Mahovlich scored three goals Thursday to lead Montreal Canadiens to a 10-2 romp over Chicago Black Hawks in an exhibition game in Halifax.

Claude Larose, Phil Roberto, Guy Lapointe, Peter Mahovlich and Jacques Lemaire got the other Montreal goals.

The five goals for the Lafleur - Cournoyer - Mahovlich line gives them a total of 10 goals in Montreal's three victories so far in exhibition play. Mahovlich leads with five goals, Cournoyer has three and Lafleur two.

Johnny Bucyk, Wayne Cashman and Ivan Boldirev tallied for Boston.

Despite taking 14 of 19 penalities handed out, St. Louis Blues downed California Golden Seals, 4-1, in Sudbury.

Brit Selby, Frank St. Marseille, Gary Unger and Wayne Connelly scored for the Blues after Gary Croteau had given California a 1-0 lead early in the opening period.

British In Lead

HAMILTON, N.Z. (CP-REUTER) — Britain defeated Canada in both foursome matches today to take the lead in the second day of the Commonwealth women's golf championship.

Britons Mary Everard and Carole Walker turned on superb below-par golf to beat Jocelyne Bourassa of Shawnigan Falls, Que., and Betty Cole of Edmonton, 6and 5. Belle Robergson and Dinah Oxley had to withstand a magnificent rally by Marilyn Palmer of Kamloops, and Gayle Borthwick of Toronto before winning, 1 up.

It was the first loss of Miss Bourassa, who led the Canadian team to victory in opening play Thursday against Australia.

Still on tap today were four singles matches.

Giants Inch Closer to Title

They have won more games in a row this season but San Francisco Giants are more delighted with their current two-game win streak than with any other of the earlier spurts.

Losers of 11 of their last 15 games, Giants edged Houston Astros, 2-1, Thursday night to extend their lead in the West Division of the National League to three games over the idle Los Angeles Dodgers.

The win reduced to four the total of Giant wins or Dodger losses needed to give San Francisco the division title. Each team has six games remaining, the Giants all on the road, the Dodgers three at home and three away.

Gaylord Perry fired a three-hitter and Willie McCovey gained credit for driving in both runs. McCovey cracked his 18th home run of the season in the fourth inning and then was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded to force in the ultimate winner in the fifth.

Perry, who started the threat with a line-drive single, scored the winning run. Another single by Ken Henderson and an error by third baseman Denis Menke had loaded the bases.

Astros got one run back in their half of the fifth inning but couldn't get another threat going against Perry, now 15-12. Don Wilson, trying for his 17 win in 26 decisions, took the loss.

In other National League games, Pittsburgh Pirates, who clinched the East Division title Wednesday, trimmed St. Louis Cardinals, 5-0; New York Mets edged Chicago Cubs, 5-4; and Philadelphia Phillies outscored Montreal Expos, 6-4.

Willie Stargell pulled into a tie with Hank Aaron of Atlanta in the home-run race with his 46th of the season to key a 12-hit Pittsburgh attack against Reggie Cleveland and three successors.

Nelson Briles, a former Cardinal, checked St. Louis on six hits for his eighth win in 12 decisions.

BREAKS UP DUEL

At Chicago, Bob Aspromonte's two-run, tie-breaking single in the eighth inning broke up a pitching duel between Nolan Ryan and Juan Pizzaro.

Ryan overcame early control trouble to bring his record to 10-13. Pizarro, who had beaten the Mets in his last two starts against them, took the loss — his sixth against seven wins.

The Phillies erupted for four runs after two were out in the ninth inning to defeat the Expos.

BREEZING ALONG

Ernie McAnally, 10-12, was breezing along with a three-hitter and needed only one more out when he walked Larry Bowa. Mike Anderson singled and then Willie Montanez and Deron Johnson received bases on balls to force in one run. Greg Luzinski slashed a two-run single and then after Mike Marshall had taken over for McAnally, Bob Bailey booted Don Money's grounder allowing the fourth run to score.

Only two games were played in the American League and Baltimore Orioles, who need only one win or Detroit loss, and the Tigers were idle.

On Injured List

Rogers Lehew, general manager of the Calgary Stampeders, said Thursday that he would place quarterback Jerry Keeling on the 30-day injured list today or Saturday. Keeling, above, suffered a 'slight separation' of the right shoulder against Montreal Alouettes Wednesday. Lehew said that Keeling would be placed on the injury list "or we'll use the old Toronto Argonaut or Ottawa Rough Rider trick and suspend him."

Knudson Well Off Pace In Try for Repeat Win

ROBINSON, Ill. (AP) — George Knudson of Toronto, last year's winner of the Robinson Open golf tournament will have to improve his game tremendously in this year's version of the $100,000 event if he is to make today's cut for the final two rounds.

Knudson had a 75 after the first round Thursday, while rookie Dwight Nevil and George Archer matched early 67s and then sat back and watched them stand up for the first-round lead.

All of the leaders were early starters as a gusty afternoon wind sent late scores soaring.

Lee Trevino, the pre-tourney favorite and a late starter, managed only a 72, one-over-par on the 6585-yard Crawford County Club course.

"I just wasn't thinking very good," said Trevino, winner of the American, Canadian and British Opens earlier this year.

There was a large group at 69, two under par and two off the pace. Among them were Bert Greene, Jim Colbert and Mike Hill, all morning starters.

Ken Fulton of Montreal came in with 70, Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg, had 72, and Ben Kern of Toronto, 73.

J. C. Snead and Mason Rudolph, with Trevino the only members of the American Ryder Cup team that beat Great Britain last week who are competing here, also had 73s.

Nevil, a one-time Dallas fireman and now a San Antonio resident, hasn't come close to winning a major tournament in this, his first year on the pro tour. His best finish was fourth in last week's Quad Cities Open, a $25,000 satellite event.

West United Bears Regal Resemblance

If Frank Grealy's Victoria West United bears resemblance to the Victoria Royals of the Western Canada Soccer League, it's because seven of the starting XI were members of the summer club.

Grealy is the coach of the West United side which will open its Pacific Coast Soccer League season at Royal Athletic Park on Saturday against highly-touted Vancouver Firefighters starting at 2 p.m.

United, who will share Royal Athletic Park this season with Victoria Gorge Molsons, the other Island entry in the PCSL, will include ex-Royals Howie Anderson, Ray Telford, Jim Irvine, Brian Robinson, Dan Stokes, Jan Bentley and Bob Duncan in their lineup.

Ash Douglas, a 17-year-old juvenile player from the second-division Gorge organization, will be in goal. In front of him are fullbacks Anderson and Telford.

Grealy's halfbacks are Ranjit Dillon, the veteran star with Vaictoria Shamrocks of the Western Lacrosse Association, Irvine and Robinson, who has also been named the team's captain and Grealy's assistant coach.

Stokes and Duncan are wingers, Bentley and Stewart Taylor, a first-division Cosmopolitan Royals product, are the inside-forwards and Tom Forrester, a Nanaimo district player, will be at centre-forward.

Grealy will have forward Danny Lomas and halfback Ralph Anderson, a Victoria West Division I player last season, as alternates. Ron Thompson, another player who lined up with the Royals this summer, has been signed by the club but is holidaying in England and not expected back until Oct. 12.

Dragways To Stage Powder-Puff Event

Besides the regular drag racing program, a "powder puff" competition will be run for women over the age of 16 and carrying a valid driver's licence. Cars used must also pass a safety and technical inspection before the race.

Time trials for competition, modified, super-stock and stock brackets will begin at 9 a.m. with eliminations starting at 1 p.m.

Also on hand will be Les Davenport of Portland, Ore., who will perform in his wheel-standing 1951 Prefect, Obsession.

Richmond Wins Minto Cup

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Richmond Roadrunners became the first western Minto Cup champions since 1962 here Thursday night with a 13-11 overtime victory over Peterborough PCOs.

The win gave Richmond the Canadian junior lacrosse championship four games to three as the series went the full seven games.

The largest crowd ever to see a junior lacrosse game in the west — 4700 — watched Richmond come from behind an 8-6 deficit in the third period to force the overtime. They started with a 3-2 edge in the first period.

Walt Weaver, an addition to the Richmond lineup from New Westminster, scored six goals including three in the third period and two more in overtime.

Goaltender Dave Gernaly, a pickup from Burnaby, was named the most valuble player of the series. He stopped 41 shots Thursday.

The series had been a rough affair until the seventh game when the team avoided penalties.

Offer Rejected

TOKYO (Reuter) — North Korea has turned down a Japanese offer to take part in the hockey tournament at the Sapporo Olympics beginning next Feb. 3, the Japan Ice Hockey Association said Thursday.

Two Hono On Speed

Western Speedway will pa close the gates for the season Saturday, after superstocks and stock cars take to the track to compete for the Island Driving Championships in each division.

Super-stock points champion, Rick O'Dell will be on hand, along with Terry Forsyth, who will be out to defend his second-place edge over Roy Haslam and Larry Walker.

The over-all points winner in the stock-car division will not be known until the checkered flag drops on the final main event of the year. Larry Pollard goes into the competition with only four points se-

NHL Exhibitions Tough on Rookies But Veterans Tend To Be Relaxed

TORONTO (CP) — The National Hockey League exhibition schedule may be a tough grind for rookies trying to impress their coaches, but the established veterans tend to be relaxed.

Or take 31-year-old Bobby Hull who found time to joke with teammate and reporters about his age in the dressing room after the game.

STARTED FUN

Dennis Hull started the fun when he mentioned a recent magazine article 'which referred to brother Bobby as "the aging Bobby Hull."

"First I'm the balding Bobby Hull," said the Golden Jet who is fast losing his "Golden".

"Now I'm the aging Bobby Hull. The next thing will be the decrepit Bobby Hull, I suppose. After that, I should be eligible for the comeback of the year."

SPOTLIGHT SHIFTED

Besides age and his receding blond hair, Hull faces the fact that many of the spotlights he once held now have switched to other stars such as Boston Bruins centre Phil Esposito and Bobby Orr, Bruins' all-star defenceman.

Hull was the first to beat Rocket Richard's record of 50 goals in one season, but the Chicago left-winger's 58-goal mark set in 1968-69 lasted only two years before Esposito, a former linemate at Chicago, scored 76 for the Bruins.

"He might do it again," said Hull, suggesting he holds no resentment for the stars who have grabbed his spotlights.

IT DOESN'T HURT

"Espo is quite a hockey player. When he played on the line with me and Chico (Maki) it really was fun. Any time Espo is on the ice now, Bobby Orr usually is there, too. It doesn't hurt a forward to have a guy like Orr passing him the puck."

As for the Bruin defenceman, Hull said Orr "already is doing things that I couldn't do."

Being a defenceman gives Orr "one advantage that I didn't have."

"I mean that extra 60 or 70 feet in which to manoeuvre. Any time I got the puck somebody was taking a run at me before I'd gone 10 feet."

Hull believes it would be folly for a player to hope that no others would ever outshine him.

"In this game nobody stands still. The worst mistake a player could make would be to figure his own records will last forever. It doesn't happen that way. When a young player like Orr comes along, everybody benefits because the sport benefits."

Despite all this talk of aging, Hawk coach Billy Reay says:

"Hull is as good as he ever was. There is nothing the guy can't do."

Hungarian Defector . . . . . Wants Hockey Career

He's Come Too Far to Quit

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Les Farkas has come too far to quit now.

So the next step for the 22-year-old, former defenceman for the Hungarian national hockey club is Dayton Gems of the Eastern League.

"My life is hockey—I just want to play," he says.

Farkas was born in Budapest and laced on his first skates there at the age of 10. By 14, he was a member of the national junior team and at 19 moved up to the seniors.

NO REAL OPPORTUNITY

"I realized when I was very young there was no real opportunity for me to develop as a hockey player in Hungary," he says.

"We have only about 300 players in our system and only four rinks — all in Budapest.

"I wanted very much to play in Canada because everybody in the world knows Canada is Hockey. I was not a big star in Europe, just a simple hockey player. But my life is hockey and I want to be a good hockey player in Canada if that is possible."

PASSPORT TO FREEDOM

The Hungarian national team went to Poland to train for the 1970 world championships, then moved on to East Germany and Copenhagen for exhibition games.

In Denmark, he defected.

"I was at the hotel in Copenhagen. The rest of the players had gone out to see the city and some of the sights. I just took my skates and a small bag with some clothes in it and went to the Canadian Embassy in a taxi.

"The officers at the embassy put me in touch with the Danish police. They sent something, where I stayed for about a month before I was allowed to come to Canada."

In Montreal, he sought a tryout with the American Hockey League Voyageurs but they declined. Farkas moved to Quebec City where Philadelphia Flyers of the National League and the Aces of the AHL were holding a joint camp.

NOT ROUGH ENOUGH

Farkas got his tryout, but "they told me they were looking for a John Ferguson type ... that I wasn't rough enough."

The next stop was Syracuse and a trial with the Blazers of the EHL.

"I felt I was rough enough I took 10 minutes in penalties the first game, but Mr. Watson (coach Phil Watson) said I wasn't fast enough for him."

Farkas kept trying and won a tryout at the joint camp operated here by Boston Bruins of the NHL, Boston Braves of the AHL and Oklahoma City Blazers of the Central League.

At the Boston camp, Farkas said:

HAS DESIRE

"Life is hard. Hockey is hard. I know that to be a player in Canada I have to work very hard. I know there is more body-checking here. I'm not afraid. If a player on the other team wants to kill me on the ice — I'm going to kill him first.

"I don't care about the money, I just want to play."

Milt Schmidt, general manager of the Bruins, suggested he try Dayton Gems of the EHL, whose camp opens Oct. 4.

"He has all the desire," Schmidt said. "He lacks experience."

Two Honors To Be Decided On Speedway's Final Card

Western Speedway will close the gates for the season Saturday, after superstocks and stock cars take to the track to compete for the Island Driving Championships in each division.

Super-stock points champion, Rick O'Dell will be on hand, along with Terry Forsyth, who will be out to defend his second-place edge over Roy Haslam and Larry Walker.

The over-all points winner in the stock-car division will not be known until the checkered flag drops on the final main event of the year. Larry Pollard goes into the competition with only four points separating him, and second place, Chris Van de Water. The senior member of the Pollard team, Earl, is currently holding down third spot, and will also be a contender for the honor.

Both the 60-lap stock-car main event, and the 75-lap super-stock main event will be for double points, making it possible for a driver to earn a total of 240 points.

The battle for the Corby Cup (an award presented to the driver who has won the most main events), will continue, as both Rick O'Dell and Chris Van de Water picked up a seventh main event victory of the season last weekend, and remain tied for that honor. The Corby Cup race ended in a tie last year, and was presented to Ross Surgenor and Harvey St. Hilaire, each of whom had won six main events.

Willie Dunn chronicles native exploitation

Indian Movie-Maker Hits Racist Plots

'Stop Making Kids Ashamed'

By ALEX BINKLEY

MONTREAL (CP) — Willie Dunn leaned in the deep high-backed chair to emphasize his point.

"When my five-year-old niece was told by her mother that she was an Indian, she cried and cried.

"She was brainwashed about being an Indian.

"We've got to stop cowboy and Indian movies and the racism they create. We've got to stop films that make kids ashamed of themselves if we are ever going ao live together. All we're doing now is taking away people's self-esteem."

Willie knows what he is talking about. The 29-year-old Mic Mac, son of an Indian mother from the Restigouche, Que. reserve near the New Brunswick border and a Scottish father, was born and raised in Montreal. He has tasted the bitter fruit of racism and prejudice.

Wins Grant

He also is an award-winning movie-maker, songwriter and singer. His foreign-acclaimed 10-minute short film, The Ballad of Crowfoot, produced while working under contract to the National Film Board, won him a $2,500 grant this year from Hollywood's Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

The money is going into The Seeds of Exploitation, "a concise film showing the exploitation of Canada's native peoples by the white man from 1600 to 1971," Willie says.

The Ballad of Crowfoot started off as one of 10 songs about famous Canadian Indian chiefs. Willie wrote them in 1967 for Indian Magazine, a CBC radio program produced by John Barbarash and Johnny Yesno.

A bitter melody which will be in Willie's soon-to-be-released second album, The Ballad of Crowfoot tells of the humiliation and degredation the white man has brought to Indian society.

In 1968, Willie collected historical photographs about the Indian and the coming of the white man and his civilization from the National Archives in Ottawa.

He blended them using his song as background music to produce the film which has sold more copies than any other NFB production this year, he says.

Willie calls the racism that he and most Indians have encountered "facism — the kind of mentality that only wants to look after its own kind."

Jail Came

Consciousness about his identity slowly evolved while in the army from 1959 to 1963 and various activities after he left the service which he says got him into jail "many times."

After travelling and working in parts of Canada in 1963-64, he decided to test a suggestion from his performances at army variety shows that he become a professional singer.

During the next couple of years his billings in Canada and the United States were few and far between and never-paid-well, he says, admitting that he "starved many times."

Then he landed a job writing the musical score for the Ecstasy of Rita-Jo, a play which ran in Vancouver's Queen Elizabeth Theatre.

Double Change

After the play finished, Willie returned to Montreal and started writing for Indian Magazine. He says the program's airtime "was a good indication of Canadian concern for Indians" as it had its half-hour moved to an hour and then abruptly switched back.

It was then that Barbarash got Willie to do the Indian chief series from which the Ballad of Crowfoot emerged.

Through an acquaintance, Willie got into a special Company of Young Canadians program to have seven young Indians trained by the NFB in film-making. Willie is still working under contract with the board.

Disney's Sneezy Dies at 78

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Comedian Billy Gibert, whose trademark was an ability to sneeze with the violence of an eruopting volcano, died Thursday at the age of 78 in a convalescent home.

Gilbert specialized as a zany who would pop up in the middle of a movie to provide some comedy relief, get a quick laugh and disappear in the next scene. He appeared in 300 movies.

"People remember me as the comedian with the funny sneeze," Gilbert once said. "Funny thing is that I didn't use it in more than five or six of all those films I made, but the way it sticks in people's memories you'd think that was all I ever did."

He was the voice of "sneezy" in the Walt Disney production of Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs.

Of his speciality, Gilbert said, "I didn't practice the sneeze or work on it very much. Anybody can sneeze. The secret is suspense, to keep them guessing when it will come."

Gilbert said recently he hadn't had a cold since 1918.

He leaves his widow, Lolly McKenzie Gilbert.

Firing Was Best Answer For Male Go-Go Dancer

MELBOURNE (UPI) — A tattooed topless go-go dancer was fired from a sideshow at the Royal Agricultural Show Thursday after officials discovered "she" was a man.

Sideshow owner Herculese Caramba said the dancer was appearing as part of a show featuring two rock bands, go-go dancers, a belly dancer and an Egyptian dancer. He said he wanted his show to be a "family show" and therefore felt it was necessary to fire the tattooed topless dancer when he found out "she" was a man.

Death Word Late

OTTAWA — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Thursday that "a very serious mistake was made" when Ottawa parents were not informed for six weeks after their son was killed in Italy.

David Bagguley, 20 died June 20 following a motorcycle accident in southern Italy. The family was notified Aug. 6 after Mr. Bagguley, the boy's father, said he had practically pleaded "on bended knee" for information from the external affairs department.

Sharp said he has been in touch with the family and expressed "our profound regret."

He said the Canadian embassy in Rome had an "enormous load" when the accident happened, but he didn't feel this was justification for the delay in communications. "Steps are being taken to see it doesn't happen again."

□

MOSCOW — Vancouver Mayor Tom Campbell dined Thursday with the mayor of Moscow, Vladimir Promyslov. Campbell and his wife arrived here Tuesday on an official visit, the latest in a growing number of visits by prominent Canadians.

□

VANCOUVER — Lou Kaufman, one of the most powerful figures on the Vancouver waterfront, says he will step down early in December as president of Local 500, International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union. "I'm getting out for personal reasons," he said. "I never intended to make a career of this."

□

Campbell

□

WASHINGTON — President Nixon will chat privately for 35 minutes Sunday night with Emperor Hirohito of Japan in Alaska, the White House said.

□

WASHINGTON — Rep. Edwin Edwards, (D — La.), won't be getting his $3,541.66 monthly pay as a congressman for awhile. Edwards took himself off the congressional payroll effective Sept. 8 while he runs for governor of Louisiana. An aide said he tried to get himself removed from the payroll as far back as July 30.

□

TOKYO — The ashes of the late Yukio Mishima, Japan's internationally known writer who shocked the world by committing a ritual harakiri suicide nearly a year ago, are missing from his tomb in the western outskirts of Tokyo, police report.

□

EDMONTON — A nine-year-old boy who fell from a six-storey railway bridge and landed on the ground is resting in hospital with a bruised leg and a lump on his head. Brian Ropchan of Edmonton was playing on the bridge with friends when he slipped and fell into a ravine.

Names In the News

PRINCE GEORGE — Robert Corbin, 24, appeared in provincial court Thursday charged with the 1967 murder of James Hutchinson, 44, of Prince George. He was remanded without plea to Oct. 1 by Judge J. Harold Kenney. Corbin is the third man charged in the Sept. 19, 1967, murder.

□

VANCOUVER — A British Columbia Supreme Court jury failed to reach a verdict after deliberating more than 10 hours in the case of a man charged with threatening to cause the death of a woman. Mr. Justice W. R. McIntyre directed that a new trial be held for Charles Orville McKinnon 61, charged with uttering a threat to cause the death of Mrs. Elaine Nelos of Vancouver.

Youth View

Too Many On Road For Good Hitching

OTTAWA (CP) — Young travellers are concerned that there are too many hitch-hikers on the roads for all to get rides, a survey of transient youth in Canada this summer has found.

The survey of 222 persons aged 14-25 years and representing 20 cities was done for the Canadian Council on Social Development which is holding its annual meeting here.

The council is a national voluntary organization which analyses the causes of social breakdown and need.

Mrs. Charlotte Unsworth, the project assistant, told council members that most of those surveyed felt that a bus service for transients would be the answer.

"This service could be provided at a cheaper rate to enable more youth to travel," she said. "A bus service should also be provided in larger cities to transport youth from one end of the city to the other to enable them to proceed with their travel."

She said young people surveyed also often said hitchhiking laws should be relaxed.

"Many felt that hostels should make youth feel at home, with indefinite staying periods and better organization. They should be open 24 hours a day and allow children and groups to stay together.

"It was suggested that a hostel be set up in every city with a population of more than 50,000 citizens. Fewer local youth staying at hostels would also alleviate the overcrowding problem."

Smoke-In

Judge Hints Origin

VANCOUVER (CP) — The judge heading the inquiry into the Aug. 7 disturbance in Gastown said Thursday there was a "smoke in" at Washington, D.C., in July — the month in which a witness said the idea of one here was conceived.

Mr. Justice T. A. Dohm of the British Columbia Supreme Court, sitting as commissioner of the inquiry appointed by the provincial government, asked Eric Sommer where the idea of a smoke-in at Gastown originated.

Sommer, 24, a free-lance writer and a landed immigrant from the United States, replied that he didn't know but that the idea began in July about three weeks before the disturbance.

Commissioner Dohm: "Did you know they had one in Washington, D.C. in July?"

Sommer: "I was not aware of that."

Commissioner: "Do you read your paper?"

Sommer said earlier he works for the Georgia Straight, a non-establishment weekly newspaper published in Vancouver.

Commissioner: "Do you have the July issue?"

Sommer: "Maybe ... I don't remember reading ... I think it may have been one issue I did not read."

A demonstration which preceded police action against a crowd in Gastown on Aug. 7 had been billed in advance in the Georgia Straight as a smoke-in at which a 10-foot "joint" (marijuana cigarette) would be featured.

Sommer, alleged earlier by police witnesses to have been one of the organizers of the demonstration, said in evidence Thursday that he was not there in any way as an organizer.

He said he was there to support the smoke-in and was looking forward mostly to the music and dancing.

Asked by Joe Wood for the B.C. Civil Liberties Association if he expected a confrontation with police that night, he said "It seemed a remote possibility the police would intervene."

The recent wage settlement with Victoria firefighters came in for another round of criticism Thursday but city council gave final approval to the contract giving firefighters an 18.52 per cent increase over 15 months.

Actually, the contract was accepted by council Aug. 31, but a bylaw "to authorize and confirm" the agreement had to be prepared and it, too, required council's approval.

Ald. Tom Christie told council the increase would cost the city's taxpayers too much money and, therefore, he would vote against it.

Ald. Peter Pollen said he "can find no economic justification" for the increase. He also criticized the fact that neither council nor the public

EMISSION CONTROL monitor to be used at motor vehicle testing station on McKenzie in Saanich, was given first workout Thursday by motor vehicles branch superintendent Ray Hadfield, applying apparatus to exhaust system, and by Attorney-General Leslie Peterson in car. — (Jim Ryan)

Vehicle Testing Includes Exhaust Check

An instrument for testing car exhaust emission — described as a vital step in the fight against pollution caused by the automobile — has been pressed into service at the Victoria motor vehicle inspection station.

It was unveiled Thursday by Attorney-General Leslie Peterson and will be used to gather information on the cars that pass through the McKenzie Avenue station during the next three months.

The monitor will disclose the amount of hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide emmission from B.C. cars and is also to provide the data required for development of regulations. The regulations would set the maximum tolerable limits of pollutants emitted from exhausts.

Peterson said limits would probably vary according to the capabilities and types of cars.

This would apply mainly to cars manufactured before 1971. Federal and provincial regulations require 1971 cars and light duty trucks to be equipped with air pollution control devices.

Peterson said, however, that proper maintenance would be required for the new equipment.

Fire Pay Final

The recent wage settlement with Victoria firefighters came in for another round of criticism Thursday but city council gave final approval to the contract giving firefighters an 18.52 per cent increase over 15 months.

Actually, the contract was accepted by council Aug. 31, but a bylaw "to authorize and confirm" the agreement had to be prepared and it, too, required council's approval.

Ald. Tom Christie told council the increase would cost the city's taxpayers too much money and, therefore, he would vote against it.

Ald. Peter Pollen said he "can find no economic justification" for the increase. He also criticized the fact that neither council nor the public had been kept informed during the negotiations.

Both Pollen and Christie had voted against the agreement last time. Ald. Harold Olafson, who voted against it last time, voted in favor Thursday.

Hospital Election Oct. 26

The Saanich Peninsula Hospital Society's board of trustees will be elected at a public meeting at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 26 in Sansche Hall in Sidney, Capital Region hospital chairman J. B. Cumming told the Colonist Thursday.

"The board of trustees will then elect its officers," he said, and explained that only society members will be eligible to vote. Membership fees are $1 each.

The first unit of the hospital planned for Mount Newton Cross Road will be a 75 bed extended-care section. Work on this unit will be started next spring.

The next section to be built will be a 75 bed acute-care section.

Unblemished Countryside Recycling Aim

Car-Pock Facelift Planned for B.C.

There are possibly 150,000 tiny but ugly pock marks on the face of Beautiful B.C. at any one time — in the form of abandoned, deteriorating cars — but the government is about to try and restore the original smooth complexion.

Or almost.

The job will be done through the collecting, compacting and shredding of the derelict wrecks for recycling purposes and the worst of the blight should be removed from the countryside in two to three years, Recreation Minister Ken Kiernan said Thursday.

Kiernan announced that the government had entered into a 10-year contract with Richmond Steel Recycling Ltd. in Richmond. The company will turn the compacted cars into shredded scrap metal for sale to smelters.

The cars will be sold by the government to the company at about $10 a ton, and the company is expected to realize from $28 to $40 a ton in the sale of scrap to the smelters, Kiernan said.

Kiernan stressed that the government did not expect to make a profit but hoped only to recover the costs of collecting and compacting the cars. He also believes the operation will create jobs.

The first compacting of cars has taken place at Port Alberni and has involved about 1,000 cars over the past several weeks, Kiernana said.

He said the Richmond company was building a plant to meet the needs at a cost of about $1 million and would probably be ready to begin its shredding operation by June 1.

Most of the scrap will likely go to a smelter in the Vancouver area, which is one of two major smelters in B.C. The other is at Kimberley.

"I think, given two or three years, we will clear up this derelict automobile situation in the province," Kiernan said.

Connoisseur Must Walk

VANCOUVER (CP) — The shipping tie-up caused by the continuing strike of United States west coast longshoremen is affecting the selection on B.C. liquor store shelves.

William Bruce, Liquor Control Board chairman, said Thursday that imported lines are not coming off the boats as quickly as usual.

He said there is no real shortage although connoisseurs may have to shop around for certain brands.

Antenna Falls In Roof Fire

The TV aerial on the roof of a small, older-type apartment building at 1034 Pandora fell into the attic area when sparks from an incinerator set fire to the roof Tuesday afternoon, Victoria firemen said. No one was hurt and damage, confined to the roof area, was estimated at $1,000.

Age, Fall, Alcohol Spur Death

A combination of age, falling down a flight of stairs and a blood-alcohol content of .20 per cent resulted in the accidental death Aug. 24 of William Desmond Hugh Beresford Patterson, coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre disclosed Wednesday.

St. Jorre reported he learned in his inquiry that Patterson, 61, of 666 Cook, was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Joseph's Hospital after he fell down 17 steps at the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans building, 1001 Wharf Street.

Chew Excavating Low Sewer Bid

A Victoria firm was low bidder on Sidney's proposed trunk sewer lines and pumping stations, which will run the full length of the town, according to Mayor Stanley Dear.

At a Capital Regional Board committee meeting Wednesday it was decided to recommend to the regional board that a tender of $559,353.07 submitted by Chew Excavating Ltd. be accepted.

Other bids were: H. B. Contracting Ltd., $578,265.59, Dillingham Corp. Canada Ltd., $619,475, G. W. Ledingham Ltd., $656,889, Norseman Construction and Engineering Ltd., $682,133, Farmer Construction Ltd., $773,169.

Dear said the trunk lines will start at Rest Haven Drive and Harbour Road and end at a treatment plant at Ocean and Fifth Streets.

He said the treatment plant has not come to tender yet.

Can't See Forest for Trees

Anti-Hunting Sentiment Misdirected

Present anti-hunting sentiment is often misdirected, Dr. James Hatter, director of the B.C. Fish and Wildlife branch, said in a statement Thursday.

Returning from the recent international conference of fish, game and conservation commissioners at Salt Lake City, Utah, Hatter referred to a conference resolution on the role of the hunter which stated:

"It is ironic that while intense emotion is generated over the hunting of individual animals, entire populations are endangered by large scale habitat damage that goes almost unnoticed. Both hunters and non-hunters should recognize a common goal in the protection of the wildlife environment and, in fact, hunters have traditionally been the largest contributors in this area."

Hatter said the role of the fish and wildlife branch was not to dictate use of wildlife resource but to maintain and enhance wildlife and their environment to serve the interests and demands of all British Columbians.

"We must, however, state that there is little biological basis to much of the criticism levelled at legitimate hunting activities," he said.

"Population regulation is an integral part of the ecology of any animal and if this takes the form of hunting it can provide an enjoyable recreation at the expense only of other regulatory mechanisms such as disease, or starvation. Death is as important as life in the maintenance of a healthy population," he added.

The conference approved a resolution declaring Saturday National Hunting and Fishing Day in Canada and the U.S.

Foam-Dome Home Boon to Housing?

QUESNEL (CP) — A foam-dome home being built in this Cariboo community could constitute a dramatic breakthrough in the search for low-cost housing, if only people learn to live with its shape.

The experimental house, built by wrapping layers of plastic foam and metal meshing around an inflated balloon, is expected to cost about $12,000 — including the price of a lot. The 1,200-square-foot house would be sold for $14,000-$15,000 — about 40 per cent cheaper than a conventional house of similar size.

Charles Bowman, Vancouver architect who designed the Quesnel model being built by Kori Resources Ltd. of Vancouver, said he's trying to cut the cost even more by developing a plastic plumbing system, including a modular plastic toilet.

He sees the foam structure as ideal for northern climates because of the excellent insulating qualities of the materials used. And it takes only three days to whip up the basic building.

His main concern is convincing people that the shape is acceptable — "people are so used to being in rectangular structures that the adjustment may be difficult for them."

He adds that while it's convenient to use a balloon in the moulding process, there's more to the domed shape than that.

"Because we are using a very weak material it's necessary to mould it into the strongest possible shape."

The Quensel pilot project consists of a main domed living area plus to oblong extensions with arched roofs for bedrooms and bathroom.

A round balloon was inflated to a height of 17 feet over a wooden base. A layer of the plastic foam was sprayed on, followed by a layer of wire mesh. The foam and wire layers were alternated until the outside walls were between four and six inches thick — which the designer says is equivalent to about 10 inches of ordinary wall insulation.

The house will be equipped with sliding glass windows and multi-colored skylights.

Interior walls can be arranged to suit the owner. A sheet of plywood is put in the desired spot and the plastic foam sprayed on. Once the foam moulds to the outside wall and hardens, the plywood is removed, leaving a plastic wall in place.

The experiment here is one of three known to be under way in Canada. Smaller foam-domes are being tried at Mansonville, Que., and Toronto, Bowman said.

The Quesnel dome is to get public acceptance and also to see how the building stands up to tough Cariboo winters. The federal government's Central Mortgage Corporation is watching and the developers hope the national housing agency will approve use of the foam material, making such homes eligible for government mortgage loans.

She Spent Summer At 115 Miles an Hour

By PATRICA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — The summer of 1970, Tom Butters, of Indianapolis, went for a test spin in a souped-up MG sports car. He hit a cement wall, blew out the engine but was uninjured.

"He said he guessed he would have to buy the car," Mary Anne Butters, his wife, recalled in an interview. "And that's how I got into racing, I guess."

They now have parts from three MGs on the frame and wseels of the one Mrs. Butters drove in 13 races in five states last summer, clipping along at 115 miles per hour. She hasn't won a first place yet, but she came in third two times and fourth two other times.

The feature writer on the Indianapolis Star and mother of a daughter, Meredity, said she and her crew covered nearly 10,000 miles going to races in St. Louis, Beloit, Wis.; Indianapolis, Detroit, and Youngstown, Ohio.

"It's hard to explain how it feels going as fast as the machine can go," Mrs. Butters, 27, said. "It's like going through a 50 MPH corner at 75 MPH."

Mrs. Butters, daughter of the John Gilmers, a farm family from Green's Fork, Ind., said she's been driving since she was 12. She started with a tractor.

The Butters' contingent gets from here to there via a wagon that pulls a trailer holding the racing car. The wagon is a converted 15-passenger airport bus re-outfitted with a tool bench and other necessities for the crew of six to eight plus professional mechanic.

"She tells us where to eat and what invitations to accept, things like that," Mrs. Butters said.

The racing family's hobby has affected little Meredity, who was six weeks old when her mom and dad decided to get into auto racing.

"Her third word was "car," Butters said. The first two were conventional "Daddy", Mommy" — in that order.

Mrs. Butters has 20 seconds to escape if her car flames. She wears a double-layer jumpsuit in which is a 20-second fire protector.

The couple agrees one benefit of racing is it teaches that cars are not the uncontrollable monsters people feel they are.

They believe driver training ought to include more time behind the wheel during adverse driving conditions — to show drivers how to handle the care at such times.

They also believe in periodic mandatory physical examinations for both drivers and cars, plus "a humiliating punishment" for anyone found guilty of driving while under the influence of alcohol.

People Wonderful Reports Mother

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. (UPI) — Jacqueline Collum, 34, a divorcee on welfare with three apparently doomed children, was cheered Wednesday by hundreds of calls and offers of help from throughout the United States.

"People have been just wonderful," Mrs. Collum said. "Somebody drove up to my door this morning, handed me a check for $200, wished me luck and drove off."

Mrs. Collum's oldest child, 13-year-old Patty, died in her mother's arms last week from Batten's disease, a very rare inherited ailment which attacks the nervous system.

Kathleen, now the oldest child, is 12, and is being cared for at home. Charles, age 7, is in school, but he is blind. Crystal, the youngest at age six, is losing her sight.

Batten's disease is an inherited ailment in which both parents have to be carriers in order for the children to be affected. There is no known therapy or cure.

During the first 10 years, a child is afflicted with blindness and other neurological problems, and convulsions. Death comes usually by age 20.

There are no records of how frequently the disease occurs, but cases have been recorded for the past 60 years. Research on it is being done at a number of universities, so far without success.

"There's hope every day my children are alive," Mrs. Collum said. She said she may use some of the money given her to take her family to see Dr. George Goodheart, a Detroit chiropractor who has treated others with Batten's disease.

Severed Arm 'Doing Great'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Ann Shelly, 16, was helping a friend taxi his light plane out of a tight airport parking spot two months ago when the whirling propeller cut off her left arm just below the shoulder. A team of surgeons worked six hours to reimplant the severed arm and doctors at Orthopaedic Hospital reported that Ann was "doing great."

Ann has been released from the hospital but because the bone in her arm has not set yet, she has to be extremely careful. She cannot go to school, but is continuing her education at home through a program where she receives regular instruction by telephone hookup.

It will be 18 months to two years before Ann regains full use of her arm, but doctors are happy with her progress.

"She has regained her normal physical strength," said Ann's mother, Mrs. Bruce Shelly. "She's going to movies and eating in restaurants and she's just beautiful."

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I liked your answer to the lady who showed pictures of her dog when the women she worked with bragged about their children and passed around snapshots.

I have both children and pets, and I can tell you quite honestly that I've had more pleasure from my pets than I've had from my three sons. I have never demanded anything of my children, just hoped to raise them to be good citizens and independent. They are both. I am now in my 70s, live alone (wouldn't have it any other way) and I have two Yorkshire terriers and a Persian cat. The four of us get along beautifully. I am just as proud of their little shenanigans as I am of my sons' achievements — which are considerable. The terriers (Malcolm the Moose and Super Star) have distinctive personalities. The cat (Madame La Zonga) is a real aristocrat. They are wonderful company. I am never lonely.

I'm sure some of my neighbors think I am odd but I don't care. My pets fill a void in my life and I am not ashamed to admit it. — Your Neighbor To The North.

Dear Neighbor: Thank you for writing. I can't help but feel a little sad for the mother of three sons who must look to a cat and two terriers to fill "the void in her life." I hope your sons are happy with their "achievements."

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from the big galoot who signed himself "Color Me Gone." I'm so furious I can't see straight. My sister was married to a bully like that and I'm sure if she had shot him, no jury would have convicted her.

There are thousands — maybe millions — of women who wish they could color themselves "Gone," especially after the brutes they are married to have colored them black and blue a few times. But it isn't so easy to pick up and leave a man when you have small children, no money, and no parents who will take you in. So these trapped, miserable women make the best of it.

"Color Me Gone" has a lot to say about his wife's excess weight and the fact that she is a bore and not up on things. He also criticizes her for not being a good sex partner. I wonder when he last brought her a little gift, a handful of flowers — told her she was important to him. Most men who criticize their wives for being slobs treat them like hired help. They save their company manners for some tramp who isn't fit to be in the same room with their wives.

If I sound like a bitter woman, believe me I am not. My own husband is a wonderful man. He has made me feel wanted and loved. But my little sister's life has been hell because she married a rat. I've seen her change from a delightful, fun-loving girl into a sick old woman.

I hope you will print this letter, Ann. It will be a welcome change from the pro-male letters I have read so often in your column. — Chattanooga Reader.

Dear Chat: Here's your letter. I agree that every story has two sides. Sometimes three.

Success Just Li

Success seems to hover like an aura over some. It is nothing you can put your finger on, but you know just the same when you see certain people. It is quite indefinable but it is there.

Such was my thought as Greta Grinnell of Bloomington, Illinois, and her mother, Mrs. Flint Grinnell of Evanston, Illinois, walked into the lobby of the Empress Hotel.

I wasn't wrong. Greta Grinnell has quite a success story. Obtaining a master's degree in journalism, Greta started off by joining Wieboldt's, a large chain store. Here she wrote advertising copy and published the company magazine.

Striking out on her own, Greta purchased a small newspaper which she both published and edited. She also wrote articles including ones on travel.

Seeing the writing on the wall (commonly called foresight) that the world was about to travel in an unprecedented fashion, she opened her own travel agency, Mid West Travel Bureau in Bloomington.

A short while later she sold her newspaper and concentrated her full efforts on the travel bureau. There was no looking back; the business just forged ahead under Greta's management.

Today, the bureau is located on the ground floor of the hotel where the owner lives. Beside the owner and manager, the bureau is staffed by one man and three girls.

Naturally, in the travel business Greta has done an extensive lot of travelling herself. Paris is one of her favorite cities — she has been there 13 times.

Greta also holds a teacher's degree which she obtained majoring in English, French and Spanish. So she is "at home" in both France and Spain.

London, where she has been at least a half dozen different times, is also on Greta's favorite cities list. In fact there isn't a country in Europe she hasn't visited — all the Scandinavian countries, Germany, Switzerland, Spain, Portugal, Italy — you name it, she's been there.

The Middle East and the Far East she is also familiar with, having visited several times. Cairo comes high on the list, as Greta says this city has an unique atmosphere with the people dressed in colorful robes and the customs so different from the West.

In the Holy Land Greta walked to visit the 14 Stations of the Cross, and from almost every country she has brought back a treasure of memories.

As well as the increased number of people travelling, Greta has noticed a gradual increase in the sophistication of today's tourist. People have more courage today — they seek places off the beaten track and are willing to take a chance on driving themselves in other countries, she says.

Hustlers Should Be Equal

By NANCY BROWN

Negro hustlers should have equal opportunity with white hustlers, a University of Washington professor contended during a lecture in Victoria Wednesday night.

Dr. G. M. Siegler was addresing an audience on the philosophy of hustling, after completing a study of hustling in the ghettos for the United States government.

Negroes, he said, have to be content with low class hustling — prostitution, after-hours clubs, selling narcotics and gambling.

Only Employment

All were illegal, but all were consential operations, as opposed to an activity like stealing where the victim gave no consent.

"White people," he said, "would cast aspersions on black people for engaging in the only employment open to them.

"A black woman can either sell one organ of her body to some white middle class fellow for $15 or $25 for 15 minutes, working only two or three days a week for a fairly comfortable living, or she can sell her elbows and knees eight hours a day for $10 a day and have to work every day of the week," he said.

"There are the only alternatives open to a balck woman in the ghetto — she has to sell one part of her body or another."

However, Sielger added, hustling of any kind was not a very lucrative busines for any Negro.

"It's a little like Hollywood — there are only a very few stars," he said.

"Most of the people in the ghettos would prefer to be doing something other than the kind of hustling they do.

Selling Sisters

"They don't respect the activity or the customer. They themselves don't go into brothels or use prostitutes.

"They don't want to run after-hours clubs, either, but they do it because very few black people have the money or the influence to get a liquor licence for a legal activity."

White people like to gamble on the stock market or in country clubs, he said.

Some Mechanism

He conceded that many Negroes are arrested for selling narcotics, but contended that they are only the low men on the totem pole in the drug organizations.

At top, he said, are the white hsutlers who are seldom identified.

If they are identified then there is always some legal mechanism or even bribery to change things.

"The prosecuting attorney or the police do have discretion in these matters," said Siegler.

"Not only do the Negroes not have a fair share of hustling activities they don't have a fair share of legal activities, either," he said.

"The black hustler doesn't tell himself that he's doing something better than hustling."

"He doesn't lie to himself,; he is honest about the fact that he manipulates his fellow man to make a living."

Siegler said that young people are directed toward hustling, becasue it is their only chance to make good in the great American dream of becoming a self-made businessman.

"What is the difference between these hustling activities and say selling food in a store without giving full information about the product?

What Mark-up

No one in a store is willing to tell a customer how much he paid for the produce, what the mark-up is, and what expenses he pays out.

"If you walk into a store and ask about these things, people think you are a madman," Siegler said.

"People who sell chickens don't know what kind of chemicals are being pumped into them to fatten them, and if they did they wouldn't tell their customers.

"To my way of thinking that is a hustle, a manipulation. There is deceit, there is fear that if there was full information the customer wouldn't buy.

"It seems to me that selling a black woman to a white man for 15 minutes for $15 requires no more demand creation and manipulation than most legal business transactions today," Siegler said.

'Abortion Is Murder'

By GLENNIS ZILM

REGINA (CP) — "Legislation alone will not solve the abortion problems," Mrs. J. J. Matthews of Toronto said Thursday in urging the Catholic Women's League of Canada to consider a complete program based on compasionate help and understanding for women facing unwanted pregnancies.

Mrs. Matthews, second vice-president of the 106,000-member league, was reporting to the national meeting on the results of last year's resolutions and urging support for this year's Project 100,000.

The project is to gather members and others who believe that abortion is murder of an unborn child, 100,000 letters to present to the prime minister in October.

"We believe that abortion is murder," Mrs. Matthews said in an interview.

She said education and counselling agencies are essential in helping the woman with an unwanted pregnancy. Agencies to care for the child who is not wanted by his natural parents are also essential.

"Some of the resolutions that will be voted on Friday (today) call for action in these areas."

The league supports organizations such as Birthright, which provides services for the woman with an undesired pregnancy. It helps her find medical care and with her home or family problems.

Angleline Lucas of Saskatoon, national chairman of the Christian Family Life committee, said "Abortion is just part of a sick society that has little respect for human life."

She said education of young people is part of the solution.

"Education in a broad way, teaching them respect for all life, at all levels and in all situations."

Young people have been given much more freedom but they must also be taught that with feedom comes responsibility, inculding the responsibility for their actions. They of the moral decisions they make.

Mrs. Lucas said this education can't only be for the young, but also for adults.

"They have to know, for they are training their children, and they want them to grow in wisdom and grace."

Both Mrs. Lucas and Mrs. Matthews supported the idea of counselling for married couples.

"The executive also is considering proposing a study into responsible planned parenthood," Mrs. Matthews said.

The Roman Catholic Church does not oppose planned parenthood but it does not recognize all methods of family planning.

As well as working in all these areas, the league also believes that attacks on the problem of poverty must be launched.

During Thursday's main business sessions, voting delegates supported the executive's action in sending a telegram to the Canadian Catholic Conference meeting in Edmonton.

The telegram asked the Canadian bishops to make representation at the Rome synod Sept. 29 to remove all laws, traditions and practices which discriminate against women.

The conference also passed a resolution asking the bishops of Canada to seek clarification from Rome on the wording of the apostolic letter advising about appointments to marriage tribunals. The English wording states that the office of notary can be filled either by men or women but the office of judge mentions men only.

The resolutions ask that if the regulations do excluse qualified women, the wording should be changed.

Mrs. A. A. Boucher of Vancouver told delegates that at least one woman in Canada is qualified "and there will be more."

During discussion, however, several delegates questioned equality for women.

"God created men and women different," said one.

Another said the main role of women should be in raising children properly in the home.

Further discussion on the role of women in the church is expected today.

Success Hovers Just Like Aura

Dorothy Wrotnowski

Success seems to hover like an aura over some. It is nothing you can put your finger on, but you know just the same when you see certain people. It is quite indefinable but it is there.

Such was my thought as Greta Grinnell of Bloomington, Illinois, and her mother, Mrs. Flint Grinnell of Evanston, Illinois, walked into the lobby of the Empress Hotel.

I wasn't wrong. Greta Grinnell has quite a success story. Obtaining a master's degree in journalism, Greta started off by joining Wieboldt's, a large chain store. Here she wrote advertising copy and published the company magazine.

Seeing the writing on the wall (commonly called foresight) that the world was about to travel in an unprecedented fashion, she opened her own travel agency, Mid West Travel Bureau in Bloomington.

A short while later she sold her newspaper and concentrated her full efforts on the travel bureau. There was no looking back; the business just forged ahead under Greta's management.

Today, the bureau is located on the ground floor of the hotel where the owner lives. Beside the owner and manager, the bureau is staffed by one man and three girls.

Naturally, in the travel business Greta has done an extensive lot of travelling herself. Paris is one of her favorite cities — she has been there 13 times.

Greta also holds a teacher's degree which she obtained majoring in English, French and Spanish. So she is "at home" in both France and Spain.

London, where she has been at least a half dozen different times, is also on Greta's favorite cities list. In fact there isn't a country in Europe she hasn't visited — all the Scandinavian countries, Germany, Switzerland, Spain, Portugal, Italy — you name it, she's been there.

The Middle East and the Far East she is also familiar with, having visited several times. Cairo comes high on the list, as Greta says this city has an unique atmosphere with the people dressed in colorful robes and the customs so different from the West.

In the Holy Land Greta walked to visit the 14 Stations of the Cross, and from almost every country she has brought back a treasure of memories.

As well as the increased number of people travelling, Greta has noticed a gradual increase in the sophistication of today's tourist. People have more courage today — they seek places off the beaten track and are willing to take a chance on driving themselves in other countries, she says.

Although this inveterate globe trotter and successful business woman has visited so many places, this is her first time to the Pacific Northwest.

She is impressed, not only by the beauty but by the friendliness of the people. Greta thinks the approach to Victoria is almost "picture postcard pretty." It is also a first time visit for her mother and she shared her daughter's views.

When I talked to them at the Empress, they were just back from a Butchart Gardens tour. They thought the gardens were both beautiful and "uplifting." Greta said the gardens are truly the most beautiful she has ever seen. And they had praise for the friendliness and helpfulness of thekr taxi driver.

They were also both in accord about the freindliness they had met in the Empress Hotel and of its lovely surroundings.

Mrs. Grinnell grew up in Maine (Greta was born in that state) among rather unusual surroundings. Her mother, Helen Melville, was a protege of the famous singer, Adelina Patti. Helen Melville went on to sing all over Europe.

"All the great of the day came to our house — Enrico Caruso, Diamond Jim Brady, to name only a couple," says Mrs. Grinnell.

She was wearing a most unusual ring. So unusual, in fact, that I broke the rules and asked her about it. A large raised round ring of many emeralds, pigeon blood rubies and diamonds, it is reputed to have once adorned (as a button) a Russian Czar's uniform. It was a gift from her husband who died last March.

No Yule Now In July

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — There was no Christmas-in-July party this year at St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital, the first time in eight years it was skipped.

In past years the hospital, which specializes in children with incurable diseases, especially leukemia, held two Yeletide celebrations, one in July and another in December.

But the midsummer one was passed over this year, eliminated by progress made in the treatment of cancer in children.

"It was once true that most leukemia victims lived only about four to six months after diagnosis, but that's not true now," Dr. Donald Pinkel, medical director of the hospital, said in an interview.

In the hospital's most recent study group, 19 of the 31 children who were treated have remained free of leukemia for three years.

"Our experience is that if a child remains free of leukemia for three years after treatment, he goes on to five years," Pinkel said.

The American Cancer Society says a person who survives fives years after treatment can be considered cured.

Princess Will Be Martha

OSLO (UPI) — Norway's little princess, born Wednesday night will be given the name Martha Louise, the royal palace announced Thursday.

King Olav V returned Thursday from a two-week private visit in the United States. He was met at the airport by his son, Crown Prince Harald, now himself a proud father.

A couple of hours later, the king met with the cabinet at the royal palace and formally announced that his daughter-in-law, Crown Princess Sonja, had given birth to a princess.

The child will be christened in four or five weeks by the bishop of Oslo.

Brides Frozen

MAIDUGURI, Nigeria (AP) — The local government joined a national campaign against inflation by limiting to $28 the price bridegrooms pay for brides. The cost of a wife has gone as high as $800.

Current Law Said 'Sheer Hypocrisy'

OTTAWA (CP) — A campaign to rid the Criminal Code of references to abortion was launched Thursday by supporters united against the "sheer hypocrisy" of present laws.

The campaign, organized by the Ontario Women for an Abortion Law Repeal Coalition, will include a national petition drive to support private members bills on abortion, a number of repeal conferences and an Ontario conference at Toronto Oct. 2.

New Democrat MP Grace MacInnis (Vancouver—Kingsway) and Liberal MP Robert Kaplan (Toronto—Don Valley) joined a panel of young women and a representative of the United Church of Canada at a news conference starting the campaign.

All agreed that laws restricting abortion should be removed so women, after consulting with their doctors, would be able to obtain a legal abortion.

References to abortion should be removed from the code to provide women with the freedom to choose, Mrs. MacInnis said.

King Fisherman

Douglas Rotarians' Derby Sunday

Sunday is the day set for the big second annual Douglas Rotary Club Fishing Derby.

First prize in the derby will be an 18-foot Deep V Fiberform Voyager inboard with Mercruiser and this year there will be a draw for a duplicate boat Oct. 2.

Fishing limits of the derby are Port Renfrew east; following international border to East Point; west to Ganges, Cowichan Bay and Saanich Inlet.

All marinas in the fishing area will be official weigh-in stations and the weigh-in deadline is 3 p.m. Sunday.

Anglers are reminded that fish caught may be entered in The Daily Colonist King Fisherman contest and at the end of the contest, one lucky subscriber will win an all-expenses paid trip for two to Amesterdam via CP Air.

Plastic Cream discovery revolutionizes denture wearing.

For the first time science offers a plastic adhesive cream that helps hold dentures—both uppers and lowers—as they've never been held before. It forms an elastic membrane that helps hold dentures firmer for hours.

It's FIXODENT™—the easy-to-use discovery that holds dentures firmer and more comfortably, too.

Because FIXODENT is so elastic, you may now bite harder, chew better, eat more naturally.

How To Store

In Thursday's column we discussed the winter storage of vegetables, and if I seem to be harping unduly on this subject, it is because I know so well how discouraging it can be to the novice gardener to have all his lovely vegetables, raised by the sweat of his brow, go bad in storage.

In this connection, I might mention that there is a very good little pamphlet available free of charge from the B.C. Department of Agriculture, Victoria. Ask for Horticultural Stencil No. 18 — Storage of Fruits and Vegetables.

I should point out that the temperatures and humidity values listed in this publication are for IDEAL conditions — something to shoot at — and it isn't likely we can meet these conditions in the average home. Vegetables will keep fairly well under less than ideal conditions, though, even if the storage life is correspondingly reduced.

In our home, we have no place at all within the house proper suitable for storing vegetables, for our "basement" is at ground floor level with a minimum temperature around 60 degrees. Most years we have had very good luck with vegetables stored in our unheated garage, but the winter of 1968, with its prolonged periods of low temperatures, turned our onions into mush and our potatoes turned black in the cooking.

The potato, incidentally, is one vegetable which must not be stored TOO cool. While most vegetables keep best at a temperature only just barely above the freezing point, the potato takes on a rather unpleasant sweetish flavor if chilled below 36 degrees. Storage life is longest in a range of 38 to 40 degrees and will keep fairly well in a 50-degree fruit cupboard, although they will start sprouting before the winter is over.

Also, potatoes should be stored in darkness, for light will turn the skins green, and these green skins are mildly poisonous. Greened potatoes can be eaten without danger if all the green is removed in the peeling, but you lose a lot of potato with such deep peeling.

Store in slatted bins so air can circulate through the slats to the lower layers. If in sacks, don't heap the sacks on top of one another but space them out a bit so air can circulate freely around and between them.

With carrots, we have had best results by burying them in cartons of peat moss, sand or sawdust, very slightly dampened, putting down a layer of peat, then a layer of carrots, and so on until the carton is filled. Ideal temperature is just barely above the freezing point, around 33 degrees, but the peat or sawdust has some insulating value which allows quite a bit of leaway in storage temperatures.

Cut the tops off short before storing but do NOT, as so often advised, cut a slice from the top of the carrot. We wash our carrots before storing, mainly to make sure no small slugs are clinging to them, but we don't scrub them violently, as scratches tend to turn brown.

Beets are prepared a little differently, for if you cut the tops off close, they bleed like a stuck pig, losing a lot of internal juices. An old-time Scottish gardener once showed me how to TWIST the tops off between the hands about an inch from the bulb, and we have followed this technique ever since. Plunge as for carrots in peat moss, sand or sawdust and store as close to the freezing point as you can manage.

Onions can take a bit more warmth than carrots or beets but are much more insistent on good air circulation around them, and for this reason they are never plunged as are carrots and beets. Store in mesh onion sacks or in slatted trays for plenty of air movement, or rope them Italian style and hang from the rafters in a cool, airy place.

Onions, like potatoes, keep best in the dark, as light encourages premature sprouting. Contact with moisture induces rotting, and as basement floors are almost always slightly damp from condensation, your onion sacks should be raised up off the floor.

King Who Hated Kids

Once upon a time there was an old king who had a thousand children. As kings go, he was a pretty good old king, gentle and kind and thoughtful. But he had one, tiny, little flaw — he couldn't stand children.

In fact, the old king couldn't even abide the sight of children. Particularly his own. He found them noisy, undependable and downright immature. When he saw one of them coming, he frowned and crossed the street.

Of course, he always said in public how much he loved his children and how much he was going to do for them. Some day. He even invited them to cocktail parties at his royal palace every blue moon or so — one at a time.

Naturally, the children knew they were unloved and unwanted. Most had to struggle to survive each passing day. So they grew up disinherited and disenchanted. And, naturally, their behavior was none too good.

Naturally, they stole hubcaps and snatched purses and sometimes even hit people on the head. Naturally, this made the old king's decent, law-abiding subjects indignant. "Really!" they said. "You must do something to correct the heaviour of your children. They're an awful nuisance."

Well, the old king groaned, rubbed his head, took two aspirin and finally announced: "In order to make better human beings of my children, I am going to build a royal correctional facility for behavioral improvement."

Everybody said this was a swell idea.

So the king hired a minister of corrections and told him to build a correctional facility in the palace basement where it would be sort of out of sight. "But build it cheap," said the old king. "I'm not made of money."

So the minister bought a thousand steel-cages of the smallest possible size and hired a hundred correctional Officers at the lowest possible salaries and gave them each a club for correcting purposes.

When all was ready, the old king called in his children. "Look," he said not looking at them, "as a father it's my duty to correct your behavior. Each of you will kindly get into one of those cages until your behavior improves. It's for your own good."

Privately, the king was a touch disturbed by his decision. "But after all," he said to himself, "what else could I do?" And he tried to forget the whole thing.

Oddly enough, however, the behavior of his children didn't improve a whit in the cages. In fact, it got worse. And pretty soon, the children were banging on the bars, demanding to be let out.

Their clamor angered the old king. "How can I let you out," he asked irately, "when your behavior's grown worse?" And he doused them brutally with a fire hose until they shut up — for their own good.

Even so, the longer they were kept in their cages, the more impossible their behavior became. Finally, they got loose one day and ran around the basement, biting guards and making hasty threats of what they'd do if they weren't let out.

It was more than the old king could endure. "The ungrateful wretches," he cried, "are behaving like animals!" And hardening his heart, he corrected them all permanently by shooting them all dead — plus, unfortunately, a couple of dozen correctional officers who got in the way.

The old king apologized profusely for his marksmanship, but not for his decision. "After all," he said, "seeing that even my vast royal correctional facility couldn't improve your behavior, what else could I do?"

Price Cuts Urged

MARILYN BECK

Chalk Ross Hunter up as one filmland producer in favor of theatre chains trimming admission prices. As far as producer Hunter is concerned, even more drastic measures would be welcome to lure folks and help save an ailing industry.

Said Ross: "Let the ladies in free during the week, drop movie prices to next to nothing except on weekends. Arn't movie houses better off playing to a full audience who pay just a little, than to a theatre full of empty seats, as many of them are now?" His observations make sense, as do some of Ross's other fancy thoughts concerning the current cinema slump.

"How about two-for-one tickets on week nights?" he asked. "And getting celebrities passing through a particular city to be in the lobby of a theatre for an hour or so to sign autographs, even if those personalities aren't featured in the movie that's playing. "We are," said Ross, "going to have to do something—anything—to rekindle interest in films. If we have to, let's start giving dishes away to movie patrons. It worked during the depression."

Stopped by Goldwyn Studios to watch Darren McGavin kill a vampire. Honestly! Dark Shadows producer, Dan Curtis, has put together a modern-day detectivevampire story for The Colchak Papers ABC Movie of the Week with Darren as the lead. Chatted with Darren and his wife Kathy Browne setside and they told me they're knee-dep. in their favorite hobby: house remodelling. "Darren wanted to be an architect as a kid," Kathy explained, "so he does the designing and the drafting on the houses we buy — and I do all the work!" Explained Darren: "I can't stand being idle. And I've found that driving the building inspectors at city hall crazy with my building projects is as good a hobby as any."

He's certainly had practice at that hobby. Darren got riled at the city fathers in a New England hamlet for refusing him permisssion to add a third storey onto his beachfront home, so he had the cottage raised and a new first floor built underneath the existing structure. And got away with it! The McGavins will have to put their hammers and saws away next spring when Darren heads for Europe and a film assignment for Greenwich Films and Serge Silberman.

More Quality Needed

If we are going to cut down seriously on our population growth — and I think it is an absolute necessity — then we will first have to change our simple-minded attitude toward the parents of large families.

Most people who meet me for the first time ask about my family, and when they find I have five children they emit little murmurs of admiration and respect, as if I had done something notable.

Now I am pleased and proud to have these children, but there was nothing especially meritorious about their conception. Their existence does not testify to my virility, or even to any exceptional fertility, and certainly is no evidence that I am suited for parenthood.

Anybody with the nominal equipment can have children; it is no great achievement. Indeed, in most cases it happens during a fit of absent-mindedness. No child should ever be called a "mistake," but some are certainly miscalculations.

Parents with four children are not twice as good or twice as loving or twice as intelligent as parents with only two children. True, they have more experience, but as Bismarck said of his donkey, "He has been through nine campaigns with me, and knows no more than he did after the first."

Apart from our population problem, I am convinced that an immense number of people who have children should not have them, and do not particularly want them, except as "symbols" of family life.

What they want are ideal children, not real ones; and as soon as the real ones show no intention of conforming to the ideal in the parent's mind, they are treated as burdens, shipped away to school, or otherwise neglected.

Somebody once said that if many people had not read about romantic love and seen it on the screen, they would never look for it themselves. I believe this, and along with it I believe that if many people were not ashamed to be thought deficient in "family feeling" they would never have children.

Nor have I noticed that the parents of large families exhibit any more proficiency in bringing them up, except in terms of establishing a barracks room regimen which is necessary for simple survival.

Some studies have indicated, in fact that children coming from large families suffer from a lack of sharply-defined personality and lack a sense of individual identity.

At any rate, we have to begin to recognize that it is the quality of parenthood that is more essential than the quantity.

Rousseau, be it remembered, wrote a masterly book on education — and then sent his five children to a foundling home. He was more honest than most.

The 1972 Mercurys. We've made them the way you want them.

Montego MX Brougham 2-door hardtop

Over the years, we've been in touch with thousands of you. You've been telling us what you want. We've been listening. And we've been learning from you.

One thing we've learned is this: if we don't make our cars the way you want them, you won't buy them. And we'll be out of business.

We've learned you want to feel safe. You want your car to be reliable. You want it to be comfortable. And you want it to be good looking.

Yet, you're a lot of different people. And you don't all want the same kind of car.

Some of you want small, economical cars. Well, we've made them. In Europe. And in North America.

Some of you want the feel of a sports car while others want a car that's big and luxurious. To others, it's quietness. To some, ride is the most important factor. And still others feel that size and ease of handling come first.

We've taken all these factors into consideration. And further, we've tested our cars. Tested the body styles. Tested the comfort, ride and quietness factors. We've built safety features into our cars and anti-pollution systems.

The result: The 1972 Mercurys. We've made them the way you want them.

MERCURY MONTEGO

Lifestyle '72,'73,'74,'75.

A totally new car with a ride that challenges all mid-size cars and even the ride of larger cars. Montego has a wider track, a new suspension system, a trim 114-inch wheelbase on the 2-door hardtops and 118-inch on the larger 4-door models. Montego gives you the feel and comfort of a much bigger car. Yet it's maneuverable and easy to handle. Clean, crisp styling highlights the outside. Inside luxury is the keynote. As for value, standard equipment includes a 250 six cylinder engine, front disc brakes, belted tires, ventless side windows, sound insulation package, contoured, deep foam padded seats and the full complement of Ford Motor Company Safety Design Features. Montego—in nine exciting models. Test drive Montego today. And find out how it can fit your lifestyle.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to Doctor Bapty and nurses of St. Joseph's Hospital for the tender care given to my wife and our mother during her illness, also to the many friends for their expression of sympathy and for the lovely floral tributes, during our recent bereavement.—Percy Claydon and family.

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Mayzes (Jim and Anne) wish to express our warm appreciation for the cards, letters, sympathy, loving understanding and kindness of friends and relatives in this time of sorrow, in their recent bereavement in the loss of their beloved daughter, Mrs. Iris Aitchison.

Lorraine Busfield and children thank their friends who have given so much strength, comfort and assistance since their loss of Peter.

Published Daily as a Public Service

Bruce Lowther

Tomorrow's Colonist will contain the third edition of AbouTV, our weekly television supplement, and I urge and even beg you to take a special look at it.

Response to the two opening editions, especially the first, has been massive and in this order: (1) Why don't you list the movies? (2) Put down each day in a list so I know what's on, and (3) The stories are interesting enough, but . . .

As of tomorrow, AbouTV will contain the daily schedules plus a day-by-day report of the pick of the evening shows, sports matches and all the movies. And the movies will have a brief description and rating.

If you're still unhappy, let me know. By letter only. Please.

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Thursday's answer — Pop song time should have been easy, especially for Al Klenman. The song starting "Every honeybee sighs with jealousy when he sees you out with me" is Honeysuckle Rose by the still - lamented Fats Waller. The modern folk who claim to be swingers have nothing on old Fats.

Today's question concerns another standard song, which tells of "A cigarette that bears a lipstick's traces . . . an airline ticket to romantic places . . ." All you have to do is name the song. Answer Saturday.

Friday Highlights

C-8:00 p.m.—Rita Hayworth, who made a big hit last season in her TV debut with Carol Burnett, adds Laugh-In to her list—2, 6.

8:30—NET Playhouse repeats a South African drama about two brothers, one of whom passes for white—9.

● C-10:00—The first Cousteau special this season is about The Unsinkable Sea Otter—8.

CABLE 10—7:00 p.m., Arts Calendar; 7:30, Ladies First, with Catherine Barker and witchcraft talk; 8:30, science series: the weather; 9:30, Project Travel.

Friday Movies

C-12:45 noon—Rage (erratic 1966 drunk-doctor drama), Glenn Ford, Stella Stevens. A nice try that fails—6, 8.

C-3:30 p.m.—Harry Black and the Tiger (1958 Africadventure), Stewart Granger. A rotten try that succeeds—7.

5:00—House of Errors (1942 Harry Langdon loser)—11.

C-7:00—Agent for H.A.R.M. (1966 spy stupidity), Mark Richman. I'd like to call it harmful, but it's not that good—7.

C-7:30—John Goldfarb, Please Come Home (1965 clinker), Peter Ustinov, Shirley MacLaine, Richard Crenna. It should go away—12.

7:30—They Raid by Night (1942 wartime ditto)—13.

C-8:00—Lock, Stock and Barrel (new western, mostly a comedy), Belinda Montgomery, Tim Matheson, Burgess Meredith, many more—8.

C-8:30—Lock, Stock and Barrel (again)—5.

C-9:30—Tattered Web (new police action-drama), Lloyd Bridges, Broderick Crawford, Frank Converse. May be changed—7.

C-12:00—Pit and the Pendulum (1961 Edgar Allen Poe). Today's second best film, and quite close to the original—2.

C-12:00—Lock, Stock and Barrel (see 8:00)—6.

12:00—Atom Age Vampire (1961 dubber, and I'm not kidding)—8.

● 1:00 a.m.—14 Hours (still great 1951 man on a ledge), Richard Basehart, Paul Douglas, Barbara Bel Geddes, Grace Kelly, seads more—4.

1:05—Ramrod (1947 Joel McCrea)—12.

Friday Radio

9:00 p.m.—Musicscope's evening has a Glenn Gould program of Bach music—CBU-FM (105.7).

9:05—Gala: music by Mozart, Frank, Haydn—CFMS (98.5).

● —Recommended; C—Color.

WE STILL AGREE; the PEN is more mighty than the sword. But words only, no matter how honestly employed, cannot possibly convey the character, substance, worth of a boat. To see, feel, step aboard, and demonstrate is the only way to determine if a certain boat is "YOURS".

We could fill this page with honest descriptions of 50 to 100 boats we have for sale. New or used from $150.00 to $200,000.00, power or sail. Give us an opportunity to show you (at this area's newest, smallest and most delightful marina) REAL BOAT VALUES.

Winning Contract

By HOWARD and BEE SCHENKEN

Of all the strange and wonderful players who played at our club, the strangest without any doubt was Trump Coup Charlie. Mediocre in most respects, Charlie was quite outstanding when it came to handling a trump contract.

Of course, the old hands at the club soon realized that it was a mistake to double Charlie in any circumstances. At that, occasionally a hand came along where it seemed you simply had to double.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	2 ♢	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Dbl.	All pass

Opening lead: Ace of spades.

Take this deal, for example, where Charlie's cock-eyed methods of bidding got him into four hearts. You could hardly blame West for doubling — nor could you blame the onlookers for assuming that Charlie was at last due to be knocked off his pedestal.

But being doubled invariably brought out the best in Charlie and after losing the first trick to the ace of spades he won the club shift, ruffed a club, entered his hand with the queen of diamonds, and ruffed another club. Then he cashed the A-K of diamonds, discarding his last club.

But Charlie calmly led a spade, which West was forced to ruff. Charlie won the enforced trump return with the nine, exited with another spade, and so took the last three tricks with the A-K-J of trumps to confound his critics once again.

Pink Bounty Swamps Gillnetters

The catch was so heavy that two boats were reported to have sunk or overturned because of the excess weight.

"We've heard of a high of 1,064 pinks caught by one boat," he said.

"We figure deliveries from the South Flats averaged 250 per boat, about 90 per cent of them pinks.

"We had reports that at least two boats toppled over due to winding up their catches on the drums, which made them unstable."

A search and rescue official said the cutter Ready went to the aid of the gillnetter Wasp after it sank to the wheelhouse five miles south of Sandheads. The cutter towed the fishing boat into Steveston.

Fewer Unemployed

Trudeau Sees Better Winter

By MARJORIE NICHOLS
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau has dismissed predictions that the coming winter will be one of the coldest in recent history, in terms of unemployment.

In a television interview broadcast Thursday night, the prime minister said he believed the economy was on the upswing and that unemployment rates will be better this winter than last.

Trudeau, appearing on the CBC show Encounter, conceded that unforeseen circumstances, such as further action by the United States, could change the economic outlook.

In such event, he said, his government would not hesitate to take special measures to bolster the economy, such as tax cuts or increased government spending.

But he was generally optimistic about the economic picture, despite gloomy predictions from critics and the recent decision of the U.S. government to subject Canadian imports to a 10 per cent tax.

"Barring some disaster from south of the border," Trudeau said, the coming winter will be better than the winter just past.

The lastest unemployment statistics show that there were 455,000 Canadians out of work in August, the vast majority of whom were in the 14 to 24 age group.

The prime minister repeated that the government had not predicted the exceptionally high unemployment rates among the younger members of the labor force. But, he

Amchitka Blast

Inner Harbor Protest Today

A mass demonstration is planned for today at Victoria's Inner Harbor to protest the proposed U.S. nuclear test blast on Amchitka Island.

Brian Greene of the University of Victoria Alma Mater Society which is organizing the demonstration said that 4,000 persons are expected at a passive sit-in being held from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. at the ferry terminal on Belleville.

As a prelude to the sit-in, a picket line will be set up from 8:30 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. at the Black Ball ferry terminal on Wharf.

The demonstration at the Inner Harbor will coincide with a protest at the international border at Blaine, Wash., sponsored by UBC and Simon Fraser students. Other protest demonstrations have been organized for today by several other universities across Canada.

Brezhnev Tells Yugoslavia To Fear Not

BELGRADE (UPI) — Soviet communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev publicly acknowledged Thursday that Yugoslavia has the right to build its own society, free from Soviet interference.

But he urged Yugoslavia to align its policy more closely with the Kremlin's through "political co-operation in the widest sense" — a move opposed by the Yugoslav government.

In a toast at an official banquet Wednesday night, Brezhnev said the "doctrine of limited sovereignty" was a fable, as were "rumors of Soviet armies . . . getting ready to start marching on the Balkans."

The "doctrine", which gives Russia the right to intervene to save the system in another communist country, was framed in 1968 to justify the invasion of Czechoslovakia. Had Brezhnev renounced it totally, he would have made it much harder for the Kremlin to invade any other East European country in the future.

Lang Threatens To Withdraw Wheat Pay Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will withdraw its Prairie income stabilization bill from Commons debate if the opposition does not allow it to come to debate in a reasonable time, Otto Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian wheat board, said Thursday.

He told the Commons Thursday that if the opposition does not pass the bill "in due and reasonable course . . . if the filibuster grows, continues," the government would conclude that passage was not possible.

Lang was speaking on a Conservative motion calling on the House to condemn the government for not making payments to farmers as required by the Temporary Wheat Reserves Act of 1956.

The motion, and a New Democrat amendment ordering the government to make the payments, were defeated as 112 Liberals outvoted the 73 Conservatives, New Democrats and Social Crediters present.

ASSISTED FIRM LETTING 300 GO

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — Union official Robert Saumure says a company given a federal grant to create 75 jobs here has decided instead to lay off 300.

In a letter to Jean Marchand, regional economic expansion minister, the United Steelworkers of America official said Canadian Ingersoll Rand received a federal grant of $220,558 in March, 1970, to create 75 jobs, but the company has decided to close its foundry.

The letter, made public Thursday, said:

"Instead of creating 75 jobs with your $220,558, Canadian Ingersoll-Rand is creating 300 new unemployed."

In Ottawa, a spokesman for Marchand said that it is possible Canadian Ingersoll-Rand has received little money to date.

Routine procedure, the spokesman said, is to give no more than a third of any grant to a company when the grant is first announced.

Richard Wendeborn, president of Canadian Ingersoll-Rand, said in Montreal the company had received no such grant although it had been told it would.

'Excellent Understanding' Links Canada, France

OTTAWA (CP) — Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann of France said Thursday his country has an "excellent understanding" with the Canadian government while carrying on a special relationship with Quebec.

Talking to reporters at the end of a busy one-day visit here, Schumann said past disagreements between Ottawa and Paris had all been surmounted or were of no consequence.

Schumann said he and Prime Minister Trudeau, at a half-hour meeting Thursday afternoon, dealth with "all the reasons why there should really be no bone of contention between our two governments."

Canada believed it was necessary — "as General de Gaulle showed" — to establish contacts and normal relations with all countries no matter what their present ideologies.

This was an apparent reference to Canada's recognition last year of China, an action taken by France under de Gaulle six years earlier.

In Canada, the former president is best remembered for his cry of "Vive le Quebec libre" from the steps of Montreal city hall in 1967, an event which cast a pall over relations between the two countries.

Harmless Nutrient

Shrimp Cocktail On Tap

That was the word Thursday from University of Victoria biology sleuths who identified red "bugs" discovered in the Greater Victoria Water District water supply as tiny, fresh-water shrimp with a life cycle of roughly two weeks.

District chief commissioner Ron Upward suggested that water drinkers look upon the aquatic invaders as "a little extra nutrient." The pint sized crustaceans are harmless, he told the Colonist.

He said the shrimp, which are small enough to go through the water system's filters but too large to go through the fine mesh on some household kitchen taps, have thrived in Sooke Lake because of the late summer warm spell.

'Contacts' Cut During Crisis

Document Ties CIA, FLQ

MONTREAL (CP) — The Star says it has "obtained a photographic copy of what is purported to be a top secret Central Intelligence Agency document indicating that the CIA has been in contact with the Front de Liberation du Quebec."

The newspaper says in a Washington story that "if the document is authentic, it shows that the CIA urgently broke contact with the FLQ at the height of the October, 1970, Quebec kidnap-murder crisis because it feared that the Canadian government emergency measures might uncover its association with the FLQ."

The story says the document appeared overnight in the mail slot of the Star's Washington bureau, along with a letter in French from an anonymous woman.

The document is dated Oct. 20, 1970, four days after the federal government invoked the War Measures Act to deal with the kidnappings of James Cross, British trade commissioner in Montreal, and Pierre Laporte, then Quebec labor minister. The terrorist FLQ claimed responsibility for the kidnappings and the murder later of Laporte.

The story says the document bears the letterhead of the Central Intelligence Agency, 2430 E. St., N.W., Washington, D.C., is marked "top secret" at top and bottom, and bears a notation that it was "encoded" Oct. 16, 1970, the day the War Measures Act was proclaimed.

Bureau for All Seasons

By ELIZABETH DUNN

DUNCAN — Off-season tourists to the Cowichan Valley have an unexpected surprise in store for them this year.

For the first time in its 18 years of operation, the chamber of commerce-run tourist bureau will be open during the winter months. Secretary Tom Oldfield explained in an interview Thursday that the tourist bureau was onl y one of the many functions of the chamber.

Oldfield explained the bureau was financed by the chamber membership and supplemented by grants from the municipality of North Cowichan and the city of Duncan.

"The grants are part of the $3-per-capita charge for tourism, industry, and ambulance service. Conceivably, then, if the municipality of North Cowichan had a population of 12,000, then the tax revenue would be $36,000 from the per capita tax.

"Last year our grant from the municipality of North Cowichan was $200, although the city of Duncan gave a grant of $1,800. It just isn't fair that the chamber membership should subsidize tourism," Oldfield said.

Oldfield, in the tourist bureau daily from 9-12 a.m., explained that in his role as secretary of the chamber he was answering 175 personal enquiries per week and 35 written ones.

"The tourist bureau fills a very necessary spot. It should stay in Duncan, but it should be run by another group," he said.

Oldfield explained that the main function of the chamber was to act as a forum for the public and members where they could meet to discuss topics of interest and hear current speakers.

Oldfield

In line with this function, a different speaker is invited to each monthly meeting. These meetings are open to the general public and feature a different speaker each time.

Past speakers have included representatives of various political groups — the last speaker was Mel Couvelie, president of the B.C. Liberals — conservation groups and issues of local concern, exemplified by Dr. Scott Wallace's visit to discuss the recent extended-care referendum.

"This year the chamber has been fairly active in dealing with pollution and environmental control," continued Oldfield. He cited the oil blob from Long Beach which the membership sent to Prime Minister Trudeau in regards to the coastal shipping routes for oil tankers.

"Our current project is the Amchitka blast. The Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island have drafted a wire to President Nixon expressing our disapproval of his plans to explode the Amchitka bomb, and we have given approval to the local Society for Pollution and Environmental Control group to use our office to collect signatures for their wire to President Nixon."

The 190-member chamber sponsored both a forum on nuclear energy and a forum on Cowichan Bay sewage. "Ours is a voluntary organization formed to promote commercial, industrial, civic and agricultural interests in the community.

"The simplest way to put it is that a joint voice, such as that of the chamber, is worth a hell of a lot more than any one person trying to get something done," said Oldfield.

Greek Skipper's Trial

Flyers Track Island Slick

By BRUCE LOWTHER

Since Jan. 1, 1970, members of the Canadian armed forces have been conducting regular aerial circle searches of the waters around Vancouver Island for posible oil pollution by ships, and territorial water violations.

The disclosure was made Thursday in Victoria Provincial Court by Major Marshall Brock Dempster during the trial of a Greek cruise ship skipper on a charge laid under the federal oil pollution prevention regulations of 1968.

Dempster testified the sovereignty and pollution aspects of coastal searches was stepped up at the start of 1970. He said a normal flight leaves Victoria International Airport, goes up Georgia Strait, flies over Port Hardy and the rest of the north Island, comes down the west coast and returns around Sooke to Victoria.

He gave no indication how often the flights take place.

The trial involved a charge that Alevisos Klaoudatos, skipper of the Greek cruise ship Orpheus, committed an offence in that he was in charge on or about last July 14 when the vessel was about 2.8 miles from Cape Lazo in the Comox area, and when "a person or person unknown" discharged an oil or oily mixture contrary to the regulations.

Twin-Engined

Dempster and co-pilot Captain James Cecil Parker testified they were in a twin-engined Tracker aircraft at about 6:40 a.m. July 14 when what appeared to be an oil slick was sighted in the Comox-Campbell River area.

The plane flew in a northwesterly direction along the track of the material to a ship they said was the Orpheus. The flyers said the "slick" was about 10 miles long, about 75 yards wide, had no gaps, seemed to start at the stern of the ship and was iridescent at the edges and a lighter color than the surrounding water.

"Everywhere the ship went, the slick went too," Dempster testified. "And it got bigger."

RCMP Sgt. Lew Dempsey testified he spoke to Klaoudatos Aug. 30 in Victoria and was told laundry work had been done July 14 "and they had discharged the laundry material from the ship and that could possibly explain" the incident.

David Campbell, a federal transport department marine surveyor, said Klaoudatos denied to him July 29 in Victoria oil was involved.

Defence lawyer Donovan Lowry of Vancouver spent considerable time attacking witneses presented by prosecutor Dermod Owen-Flood for their lack of expertise in the case.

Cross-examination of the flyers, Dempsey, Campbell and Defence Research Board chemist Richard Sewell, presented as an expert witness, took the trial to 5:30 p.m., an hour past the usual closing time for court.

Indications were at least three witnesses remained to be heard, along with various legal arguments, and the schedule of the Orpheus became a key factor.

Just for Day

Lowry explained the ship was just in Victoria for the day and had to leave at 6:30 p.m. Thursday for a cruise to Alaska. It would return Oct. 1 for another day, go back to Alaska, return Oct. 9 and after that, Klaoudatos had orders to return the vessel to Greece.

Ostler said the court calendar is full but the lawyers agreed to try to rearrange other trials so Klaoudatos can learn his fate before the scheduled return to Greece. The case was adjourned to Monday to set a definite date for completion of the trial.

Police Attack Case Receives Remand

Lloyd Earl Miller, facing a three-count charge after an incident early Sept. 12 in Campbell River, was remanded to Provincial Court here when he made a brief appearance Thursday in Victoria Provincial Court.

Judge William Ostler set a remand to next Wednesday for the charge, which contains one count each of assaulting a peace officer, possession of an offensive weapon and theft involving less than $50.

RCMP said Sept. 12 Constable George Braithwaite, 23, was investigating a reported burglary at the Town Centre motel in Campbell River when he was hit acros the head with a tire iron. He retaliated by shooting his assailant in the chest and wrist.

Man Jailed

They also said Miller was being held in Wilkinson Road provincial jail. It was not known when the charge was read to him or whether he had appeared in any court since Sunday.

Ostler asked Miller if he wished to say anything and the young man shook his head.

Qualicum District

Enrolment: Slight Rise

QUALICUM BEACH — There has been a slight increase in the number of students in Qualicum school district, it was disclosed at a recent meeting of the board of trustees.

As of Sept. 14 there were 1,931 students enrolled in District 69 schools, an increase of 36 over the number when schools closed in June.

There are also two new portable classrooms, trustees were told — one at Parksville elementary, the other at Parksville junior high.

Two Firms

Trustees also learned tenders have been received from two companies for a new 72-seat school bus.

Willocks Truck is prepared to supply a GMC vehicle at a cost of $19,794 and would require from 4½ to five months for delivery. Intertruck Ltd. of Nanaimo quoted a price of $20,411 for an International product.

Cost Shared

Trustees are in favor of the Willocks tender and will seek approval from the education department to purchase the bus. If consent is given, B.C. will contribute $8,150 toward the cost.

Trustees, meanwhile, have met with officials of the education department to discuss building requirements for next year. It is hoped a referendum can be presented in February or March.

The board also set Sept. 30 as the date for an election for a new trustee to replace Don Kallevig, who has moved away.

Deposit Dispute

Tenant Count Withdrawn

NANAIMO — A charge laid against Nanaimo Realty alleging that the company contravened the Landlord and Tenant Act by charging security deposits was withdrawn in Nanaimo Provincial Court Thursday.

The charge was laid Sept. 20 by John McCully, a resident of Alderwood apartments, for which Nanaimo Realty is rental agent.

Crown presecutor Allan Filmer said it was a situation that has been rectified.

Company lawyer Don Cunliffe said the company takes the stand that it did not commit the offence at all and acted properly at all times.

Culiffe said that as a result of a Sept. 7 meeting of parties involved, Nanaimo Realty sent a form letter to 500 tenants reviewing the rental agreements and quoting the section of the act under which it was collecting deposits on the last month's rent.

Assault Charge

Jack Dempsey Troy, 135 Craig Street, appeared in provincial court Monday and elected trial in county court. No plea was taken.

Bail was set at $1,500.

Rehearsals at Carmen's can be hard work

By LYNNE WALLER

NANAIMO — Calisthenics, road work, vitamin pills and a high-protein diet are not exactly musical, but this is the regimen being followed by a band in Nanaimo.

A few months ago the Gypsy Rovers were just another local band, playing private dates and getting work where they could.

Then at a wedding reception they were playing they ran into Carmen Pascoe of Carmen's Steak House.

As Carmen told it, "They said they needed a manager, and I said I needed a band and that was the start."

Jerry Paquette, Phil Peterson, Fred Izon and Murray Ross now play three nights a week at the restaurant.

Two Hours

So the days the band is not playing the members follow a strict schedule: up at 8 a.m. for road work and calisthenics; high-protein breakfast when arrangements and presentation are discussed; rehearsal till 11 a.m.; lunch, then two hours of meditation and sleep; and after supper the evening is spent in individual practice.

Members of the band say it is a change in their whole way of life but they are enjoying it.

"We've got to have some self-discipline because there is keen competition in this business," they said.

Carmen, who has a sports background of playing rugby and basketball, pointed out that music is a career for the band members, not a sideline for Saturday nights, so they must be serious about their work and go about it in "a systematic manner."

Tour Ahead

The band was formed originally by Paquette who plays guitar and sings. Added later were Peterson on drums and Izon on the organ. Ross, 12-string guitar, was the most recent addition.

The band plays Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights at the restaurant, and just to keep it all in the family, Mrs. Paquette and Mrs. Ross work there as well.

Carmen said he doesn't have any experience in managing bands, but "when I found a group dedicated to such an extent as this one, I wanted to be part of it."

Barrett:

Return Winter Works

NANAIMO — NDP provincial leader Dave Barrett challenged the Bennett government to release $75 million for a major winter works program to help alleviate unemployment in the province.

He was speaking at an NDP association meeting in Nanaimo Wednesday night.

He also challenged the government to end the giveaways of the province's natural resources.

In the last two years, $240 million worth of copper concentrate has left the province without royalties being collected, he said.

Barrett said British Columbia should consider adopting the policies of some Latin American countries where 50-per-cent royalties are collected on natural resources leaving the country.

Guts Needed

"We're the 2-per-centers," Barrett said, referring to a 2-per-cent royalty collected on iron concentrates.

There would be jobs in the province, he said, if the government "had the guts to stand up and bargain for them."

He said multi-national foreign corporations dominate the north and have no commitment to the development of British Columbia for British Columbians.

No Moves

We are shipping out logs to Japan so the Japanese can make plywood to sell back to us."

The Socred government has never made a move to invite the Japanese to create jobs here, he said.

Former provincial NDP leader Robert Strachan said he expected a provincial election would be all over a year from now, and that a federal election will be called before next June.

Duncan Man Being Held

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A British Columbia man is being held for transfer to Duncan where he is wanted in connection with the disappearance of $14,000 from a credit union, RCMP said Thursday.

An RCMP spokesman said Louis Earl Vyse, 41, of Duncan, was arrested Wednesday in Port Burwell, 30 miles southeast of here, on a charge of theft.

Vyse was an employee of the Duncan District Credit Union when the money disappeared last August.

Lieut. John Clark, son of Lt.-Cmdr. and Mrs. Geoffrey Clark, 5939 Pat Bay Highway, Victoria, has been promoted to rank of captain in Canadian Armed Forces. Clark graduated from Mt. Douglas high school in Victoria and now is CF-101 Voodoo pilot with 409 Fighter Interceptor Squadron, CFB Comox.

Seiner Rushes To the Rescue

CAMPBELL RIVER — A Campbell River man and his wife may owe their lives to quick action on the part of a skipper and crew of a Vancouver fishing boat.

Donald and Marcella Van Humbeck, 70 Thulin Street, were indulging in some fishing earlier this week near Maud Island, across the mouth of Seymour Narrows.

The small boat was caught in the tide and swung into the centre of the narrows, the couple recalled, "and we were helpless. All we had was a paddle and we were at the mercy of the current."

"Then we saw the lights of a boat on the Quadra side of the Narrows and we signalled frantically."

Milan Aleksich, Westview's skipper, ordered his crew to come alongside the craft in trouble, and the Westview hoisted the Van Humbek's boat onto its deck and brought the fishermen back to Campbell River.

"It was a terrifying experience and my wife says she will never go fishing in the narrows again," Van Humbeck said. "Aleksich and his crew certainly deserve recognition for their quick action."

Van Humbeck said that even boats the size of the Westview try to keep out of the middle of the narrows tide, but that the seiner wasted no time in coming to the rescue.

Insulators Shot Off

GOLD RIVER — Someone with a high-powered rifle has shot off 40 insulators from two B.C. Hydro towers about two miles north of here causing about $1,200 damage.

Gold River RCMP reported Wednesday that the incident is under "intensive investigation." They said all cartridge casings were removed from the scene.

Cost of replacing the insulators, RCMP said, is "extremely high" since the job has to be done while the lines are energized.

Nanaimo Reunion

Old Days' Taste Will Be Relived

NANAIMO — Until sometime in the early 50s the Oddfellows Hall and the Pygmy were the places to spend a Saturday night in Nanaimo.

To bring back those old days, four Nanaimo women have organized a reunion, Oct. 9 at 7 p.m. in the Credit Union hall.

They have been working for months issuing invitations to people who were "regulars" at the two well-knwon dance halls.

The Diners Rendezvous will be catering for the event as a reminder of those days when Chinatown was going great guns and the Wong Brothers had the Canton Cafe.

Fiesta Bowling Lanes now is where the Pygmy was and the Oddfellows Hall was right across from Nash Hardware, with a view of what used to be the harbor and now is Gordon Street parkade.

Guilty Plea Taken In Arson

NANAIMO — Larry Allen Myers, 22, pleaded guilty in County Court in Nanaimo Wednesday to a charge of arson.

He appeared before Judge McKay alone.

Myers admitted lighting fire to paper and clothing stuffed in an air vent in a cell at the RCMP detachment in Campbell River April 23.

He will be sentenced Oct. 8.

Pink Bounty Swamps Gillnetters

VANCOUVER (CP) — Hundreds of gillnetters packed fishing grounds off the mouth of the Fraser River Wednesday to harvest a rich run of pink salmon.

The catch was so heavy that two boats were reported to have sunk or overturned because of the excess weight.

"We've heard of a high of 1,064 pinks caught by one boat," he said.

"We figure deliveries from the South Flats averaged 250 per boat, about 90 per cent of them pinks.

"We had reports that at least two boats toppled over due to winding up their catches on the drums, which made them unstable."

A search and rescue official said the cutter Ready went to the aid of the gillnetter Wasp after it sank to the wheelhouse five miles south of Sandheads. The cutter towed the fishing boat into Steveston.

Another fishing boat, not identified, overturned in the Fraser River and was taken under tow by two other fishing vessels.

Trudeau Sees Better Winter

By MARJORIE NICHOLS
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau has dismissed predictions that the coming winter will be one of the coldest in recent history in terms of unemployment.

In a television interview broadcast Thursday night, the prime minister said he believed the economy was on the upswing and that unemployment rates will be better this winter than last.

Trudeau, appearing on the CBC show Encounter, conceded that unforeseen circumstances, such as further action by the United States, could change the economic outlook.

In such event, he said, his government would not hesitate to take special measures to bolster the economy, such as tax cuts or increased government spending.

But he was generally optimistic about the economic picture, despite gloomy predictions from critics and the recent decision of the U.S. government to subject Canadian imports to a 10 per cent tax.

"Barring some disaster from south of the border," Trudeau said, the coming winter will be better than the winter just past.

The lastest unemployment statistics show that there were 455,000 Canadians out of work in August, the vast majority of whom were in the 14 to 24 age group.

The prime minister repeated that the government had not predicted the exceptionally high unemployment rates among the younger members of the labor force. But he

Inner Harbor Protest Today

A mass demonstration is planned for today at Victoria's Inner Harbor to protest the proposed U.S. nuclear test blast on Amchitka Island.

Brian Green of the University of Victoria Alma Mater Society which is organizing the demonstration said that 4,000 persons are expected at a passive sit-in being held from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. at the ferry terminal on Belleville.

As a prelude to the sit-in, a picket line will be set up from 8:30 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. at the Black Ball ferry terminal on Wharf.

ASSISTED FIRM LETTING 300 GO

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — Union official Robert Saumure says a company given a federal grant to create 75 jobs here has decided instead to lay off 300.

In a letter to Jean Marchand, regional economic expansion minister, the United Steelworkers of America official said Canadian Ingersoll-Rand received a federal grant of $220,558 in March, 1970, to create 75 jobs, but the company has decided to close its foundry.

The letter, made public Thursday, said:

"Instead of creating 75 jobs with your $220,558, Canadian Ingersoll-Rand is creating 300 new unemployed."

In Ottawa, a spokesman for Marchand said that it is possible Canadian Ingersoll-Rand has received little money to date.

Routine procedure, the spokesman said, is to give no more than a third of any grant to a company when the grant is first announced.

Richard Wendeborn, president of Canadian Ingersoll-Rand, said in Montreal the company had received no such grant although it had been told it would.

'Excellent Understanding' Links Canada, France

OTTAWA (CP) — Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann of France said Thursday his country has an "excellent understanding" with the Canadian government while carrying on a special relationship with Quebec.

Talking to reporters at the end of a busy one-day visit here, Schumann said past disagreements between Ottawa and Paris had all been surmounted or were of no consequence.

Schumann said he and Prime Minister Trudeau, at a half-hour meeting Thursday afternoon, dealth with "all the reasons why there should really be no bone of contention between our two governments."

Schumann even got in a mention of the late president Charles de Gaulle in the context of Franco-Canadian solidarity.

Canada believed it was necessary — "as General de Gaulle showed" — to establish contacts and normal relations with all countries no matter what their present ideologies.

This was an apparent reference to Canada's recognition last year of China, an action taken by France under de Gaulle six years earlier.

In Canada, the former president is best remembered for his cry of "Vive le Quebec libre" from the steps of Montreal city hall in 1967, an event which cast a pall over relations between the two countries.

Brezhnev Tells Yugoslavia To Fear Not

BELGRADE (UPI) — Soviet communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev publicly acknowledged Thursday that Yugoslavia has the right to build its own society, free from Soviet interference.

But he urged Yugoslavia to align its policy more closely with the Kremlin's through "political co-operation in the widest sense" — a move opposed by the Yugoslav government.

In a toast at an official banquet Wednesday night, Brezhnev said the "doctrine of limited sovereignty" was a fable, as were "rumors of Soviet armies . . . getting ready to start marching on the Balkans."

The "doctrine", which gives Russia the right to intervene to save the system in another communist country, was framed in 1968 to justify the invasion of Czechoslovakia. Had Brezhnev renounced it totally, he would have made it much harder for the Kremlin to invade any other East European country in the future.

Harmless Nutrient

Shrimp Cocktail On Tap

That was the word Thursday from University of Victoria biology sleuths who identified red "bugs" discovered in the Greater Victoria Water District water supply as tiny, fresh-water shrimp with a life cycle of roughly two weeks.

District chief commissioner Ron Upward suggested that water drinkers look upon the aquatic invaders as "a little extra nutrient." The pint-sized crustaceans are harmless, he told the Colonist.

He said the shrimp, which are small enough to go through the water system's filters but too large to go through the fine mesh on some household kitchen taps, have thrived in Sooke Lake because of the late summer warm spell.

'Contacts' Cut During Crisis

Document Ties CIA, FLQ

MONTREAL (CP) — The Star says it has "obtained a photographic copy of what is purported to be a top secret Central Intelligence Agency document indicating that the CIA has been in contact with the Front de Liberation du Quebec.

The newspaper says in a Washington story that "if the document is authentic, it shows that the CIA urgently broke contact with the FLQ at the height of the October, 1970, Quebec kidnap-murder crisis because it feared that the Canadian government emergency measures might uncover its association with the FLQ."

The story says the document appeared overnight in the mail slot of the Star's Washington bureau, along with a letter in French from an anonymous woman.

The document is dated Oct. 20, 1970, four days after the federal government invoked the War Measures Act to deal with the kidnappings of James Cross, British trade commissioner in Montreal, and Pierre Laporte, then Quebec labor minister. The terrorist FLQ claimed responsibility for the kidnappings and the murder later of Laporte.

The story says the document bears the letterhead of the Central Intelligence Agency, 2430 E. St., N.W., Washington, D.C., is marked "top secret" at top and bottom, and bears a notation that it was "encoded" Oct. 16, 1970, the day the War Measures Act was proclaimed.

Tory House Leader Role Gift-Wrapped for Wallace

By DON COLLINS

The Progressive Conservative Party of B.C., reportedly on the verge of a rebirth, meets in Vancouver today and some of the discussion will centre around Oak Bay's Scott Wallace.

There are some members of the executive who think the outspoken Wallace is the man to lead the party's B.C. wing out of the political wilderness.

Wallace, who remains independent since his resignation last month from the Social Credit party, will not be present for the quarterly of the conservatives.

But he says now that he is giving as much thought to joining the Conservatives as he is to the idea of forming an entirely new party.

Last week, when he first mentioned the new party concept, there appeared much less likelihood of his joining the Tories.

But he has been swayed somewhat by the response since then.

"Everyone who has responded to that story encourages me to stay in the political picture," the MLA for Oak Bay says. "But opinion seems to be equally divided. Half of them say it is a good idea to create a new party along conservative lines that would be an alternative to the Social Credit party.

"But the other half — quite a few of them put it quite bluntly and say it would be much more sensible for me to join the existing Conservative party and work to convert it into the party I envisage."

Last week he said he didn't think the existing Conservative party lived up to his ideals.

He has three principles that the party of his choice must offer. The main theme is that the rights of the individual must be sacred.

In an interview Thursday, B.C. Conservative leader John de Wolfe, said from Vancouver that he has had several meetings with Wallace and that he too favors a new look for the present Conservative party — one which he thinks would meet Wallace's standards.

He is not, though, ready to say he would step aside to let Wallace fill his role as provincial leader.

He does, however, want him

as Conservative House leader in the B.C. Legislature.

Some of their less charitable critics delight in referring to them as "B.C.'s toothless Tories," but de Wolfe and his band of followers (nobody seems able to say just how many there are) claim this will change.

They are trying to change the party in appearance and to a degree, in philosophy.

De Wolfe speaks fondly of a platform that he calls "twenty policies for people" and which includes such proposals as deferred property tax for senior citizens, tax incentives by which workers and others could acquire shares of the B.C. economy, and the removal of school tax on property over a period of five years.

He said Wallace told him during their discussions that Wallace favored a new type of Conservative party.

"He has made it very clear he wants nothing to do with the old Conservative party — to which I said 'amen'," de Wolfe said.

He said he has met with Wallace off and on since last February. He said three members of the 27-man Conservative provincial executive approached Wallace recently "with the proposition that he interest himself with the leadership of the B.C. party."

De Wolfe said he was not immediately made aware of this.

"If anything, this has done more harm than good," he said.

On the subject of Wallace becoming Conservative house leader de Wolfe said:

"We discussed the question of whether Premier Bennett might not throw some road blocks up in terms of recognition as house leader.

"It (being house leader) makes a tremendous difference. He would have unlimited time in throne speech debate and budget debate, and on debate concerning major legislation."

She came to Victoria to meet with Wallace Tuesday night and part of her report to today's session will deal with that meeting.

Like de Wolfe, she says she is impressed with the 42-year-old Scot's frankness and what she sees as sincerity.

Service Planes Circle Island

Sky Eye on Oil

By BRUCE LOWTHER

Since Jan. 1, 1970, members of the Canadian armed forces have been conducting regular aerial circle searches of the waters around Vancouver Island for possible oil pollution by ships, and territorial water violations.

The disclosure was made Thursday in Victoria Provincial Court by Major Marshall Brock Dempster during the trial of a Greek cruise ship skipper on a charge laid under the federal oil pollution prevention regulations of 1968.

Dempster testified the sovereignty and pollution aspects of coastal searches was stepped up at the start of 1970. He said a normal flight leaves Victoria International Airport, goes up Georgia Strait, flies over Port Hardy and the rest of the north Island, comes down the west coast and returns around Sooke to Victoria.

He gave no indication how often the flights take place.

The trial involved a charge that Alevisos Klaoudatos, skipper of the Greek cruise ship Orpheus, committed an offence in that he was in charge on or about last July 14 when the vessel was about 2.8 miles from Cape Lazo in the Comox area, and when "a person or persons unknown" discharged an oil or oily mixture contrary to the regulations.

Dempster and co-pilot Captain James Cecil Parker testified they were in a twin-engined Tracker aircraft at about 6:40 a.m. July 14 when what appeared to be an oil slick was sighted in the Comox-Campbell River area.

The plane flew in a northwesterly direction along the track of the material to a ship they said was the Orpheus. The flyers said the "slick" was about 10 miles long, about 75 yards wide, had no gaps, seemed to start at the stern of the ship and was iridescent at the edges and a lighter color than the surrounding water.

"Everywhere the ship went, the slick went too," Dempster testified. "And it got bigger."

RCMP Sgt. Lew Dempsey testified he spoke to Klaoudatos Aug. 30 in Victoria and was told laundry work had been done July 14 "and they had discharged the laundry material from the ship and that could possibly explain" the incident.

David Campbell, a federal transport department marine surveyor, said Klaoudatos denied to him July 29 in Victoria oil was involved.

Defence lawyer Donovan Lowry of Vancouver spent considerable time attacking witnesses presented by prosecutor Dermod Owen-Flood for their lack of expertise in the case.

Cross-examination of the flyers, Dempsey, Campbell and Defence Research Board chemist Richard Sewell, presented as an expert witness, took the trial to 5:30 p.m., an hour past the usual closing time for court.

Indications were at least three witnesses remained to be heard, along with various legal arguments, and the schedule of the Orpheus became a key factor.

Lowry explained the ship was just in Victoria for the day and had to leave at 6:30 p.m. Thursday for a cruise to Alaska. It would return Oct. 1 for another day, go back to Alaska, return Oct. 9 and after that, Klaoudatos had orders to return the vessel to Greece.

Ostler said the court calendar is full but the lawyers agreed to try to rearrange other trials so Klaoudatos can learn his fate before the scheduled return to Greece. The case was adjourned to Monday to set a definite date for completion of the trial.

Attack Case Remanded

Lloyd Earl Miller, facing a three-count charge after an incident early Sept. 12 in Campbell River, was remanded to Provincial Court here when he made a brief appearance Thursday in Victoria Provincial Court.

Judge William Ostler set a remand to next Wednesday for the charge, which contains one count each of assaulting a peace officer, possession of an offensive weapon and theft involving less than $50.

RCMP said Sept. 12 Constable George Braithwaite, 23, was investigating a reported burglary at the Town Centre motel in Campbell River when he was hit across the head with a tire iron. He retaliated by shooting his assailant in the chest and wrist.

Musical Loot Worth $1,800

Papers Propose More Stress On News Side

A proposed restructuring of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association would place greater emphasis on the editorial side of the newspaper business.

Announcement of the proposal was made Thursday by association presient Earl Richards at the first open meeting to be held by the publishers' association, which has been meeting at the Empress Hotel.

The decision to hold the meeting with the press present followed a 45-minute discussion in a board session and resulted in the calling of a special general session, rather than a press conference, as had been planned earlier.

Richards did not comment when asked if the decision to hold a meeting open to the press had been in any way prompted by the report of the special Senate committee on mass media, released late last year.

One of the criticisms of the committee, chaired by Senator Keith Davey, had been that the newspaper industry was secretive about its business operations.

Richards did, however, deny that the restructuring proposal had anything to do with the Davey report. "The restructuring has been studied by the (roles) committee for more than a year," he said.

The Davey report also accused the industry of failure to train and motivate its news personnel properly.

Richards said an effect of the restructuring would be to up-grade editorial departments, and encourage emphasis on journalism training.

The Canadian Managing Editors' Conference would be encouraged to work closely with the new editorial division, he said.

"We feel this will provide a structure that will serve the best interests of all newspapers," Richards said.

The new structure would eliminate the many committees existing now and divide the committee responsibility into five divisions — advertising, editorial, circulation, administration and production.

But Some Reservations

Aldermen Favor Tax Relief Plan

Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock's tax relief scheme for senior citizens received approval in principle Thursday from city council but several aldermen said they had reservations about the proposal.

The mayor's scheme calls for deferral of property tax increases at an interest rate of 8 per cent for all homeowners 65 and over, until they either die or sell their property.

Participation in the scheme would be on a voluntary basis.

Ald. Clyde Savage told council financial help for senior citizens was "something every city is looking for," but this particular proposal wouldn't help anyone.

"I'm not saying the idea is wrong, but I'd like to see the provincial government come up with something instead of us," he said.

Ald. Peter Pollen said he would like to see an analysis of the anticipated cost to the taxpayer.

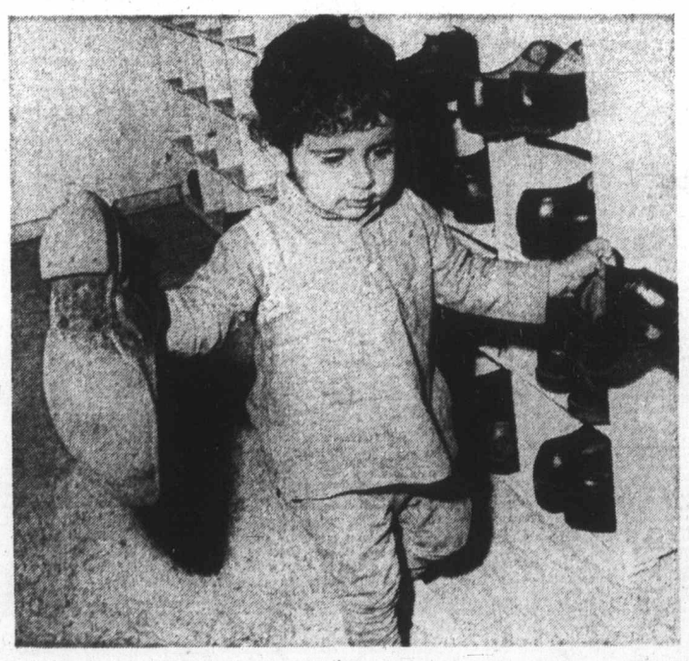
Shortly after the mayor announced details of his plan, spokesman for the city's Silver Threads Service, an organization of senior citizens, told the Colonist members of the group were opposed to the scheme.

Anyone taking advantage of the proposed tax deferral would suffer when he sold his house, the spokesman said. At that time, he would have to pay the back taxes plus 8 per cent interest.



. . . but to compromise a size or two

Spotter from East

The twin-engined Tracker aircraft involved in the Comox area pollution case was part of the VS-880 Squadron from CFB Shearwater, N.S., Maritime Forces Pacific spokesmen told the Colonist Thursday.

They said that the increased coastal surveillance around Vancouver Island waters involves two air squadrons — the VU-33 Squadron based year-round near the Victoria International Airport at Patricia Bay and the squadron from Shearwater.

One group from Shearwater comes to Vancouver Island during July for operational exercises (which includes coastal surveillance) and the other group makes its patrols during August. During that time, the eastern planes are based at the same location as the VU-33 Squadron.
